TWENTY-SEVEN HURT WHEN BUS CARRYING BALL TEAM WRECKED

Cornell University Squad Injured, Five Seriously

WASHINGTON, April 5.—A highway motor bus, carrying members of the Cornell University baseball club to Washington from Quantico, Va., was completely wrecked last night on the Richmond-Washington highway, every passenger of the twenty-seven carried receiving injury.

Five of the number were so seriously hurt as to make hospital treatment necessary.

The wreck occurred six miles from Quantico when, on a steep hill, the bus plunged from the road, crashed into a tree and overturned.

H. W. Faggett, Washington, driver of the bus, at Quantico Naval Hospital with a fractured left leg. The Cornell team was scheduled to meet the George Washington University nine here today but it is believed the game will be called off because of the accident.

All of those less seriously injured were cut by flying glass and badly bruised. Some were brought on to Washington after first aid treatment, and some were left at Quantico.

Two of those seriously injured—Faggett and Haddock—were fastened tightly in the wreckage, it requiring an hour's effort to release them. Faggett, the driver, was pinned behind his wheel, it being necessary to hack away the back of his seat before he could be taken out.

The baseball squad was on its homeward trip to Ithaca from its annual southern journey.

RAILROAD MERGER VIEWED AS THREAT

CLEVELAND, O., April 5.—A serious threat to the power of collective bargaining was seen by members of the Railway Labor Executive Association today in the proposed consolidation of small independent railroads into centrally controlled units.

A demand that laws protecting railroad employees "in the working conditions which they enjoy at present" be included in those governing consolidations will be made by the association, in its meeting here.

D. B. Robertson, chairman of the association and president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers said the association also sees a threat to public service in the proposed consolidations.

Competition among railroads results in the best service and the most rapid development of given territory, he said.

While considering legislative measures, the association is expected to start a movement looking to a six-hour working day and amendment to the railway labor act that "will strengthen the machinery for settlement of disputes between railway employees and railway executives."

NATIONALISTS END CHINESE CIVIL WAR

PEKING, China, April 5.—A government communique issued today said Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist government, entered Hankow today without opposition after the Wuhan rebels retired.

The government said the civil war lasting several weeks had "virtually ended."

The rebels continued their retreat to the South, which they began after Kwang guards of Han-kow agreed not to fight the Nationalist army.

Foreigners in Hankow were safe, the government communique added.

INFORMER TO TALK

Eugene Boyd Fairchild, dry investigator, on whose information the warrant was issued for a raid that resulted in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Lillian De King by a dry officer, was arrested Thursday night on a perjury charge. Fairchild said he had been "double crossed" by county authorities and that he was "going to tell everything" he knew about events leading to the shooting. Fairchild said he did not even read the search warrant he signed but that he was told to sign it by Walter Miller, chief investigator, who said that it didn't make any difference that he hadn't bought the liquor himself. Fairchild was arrested at Odell, Ill., after he disappeared, he claimed, on orders of his superiors.

CRUISER BRINGING HERRICK'S BODY TO STATES SETS SAIL

Departure Follows Funeral Rites Held
In Paris

BREST, France, April 5.—The new French cruiser, Tourville, slipped out of the harbor here today carrying back to his homeland the body of Myron T. Herrick, who served under four presidents as American ambassador to Paris.

The body of the ambassador was placed aboard the cruiser this morning after the arrival here of the special train which carried the funeral party from Paris.

A French marine detachment was aboard the gray cruiser as an honor escort.

The Tourville sailed at 11:40 a. m.

Light rain was falling as the body of the American ambassador was carried aboard the cruiser, which lay in the port from which two million American soldiers had waved farewell to France.

The ceremony was simple—like that which marked the state funeral that France gave Herrick in Paris yesterday—and the government paid a last tribute on French soil through the offices of the maritime prefect, Admiral Piriou.

Peasants, in wooden shoes, stood silently in the misty rain as the body was transferred to the cruiser after resting beneath a bower of flowers in the station for several hours.

The great ships in the harbor dropped their flags at half mast. Scores of little fighting boats lay off the docks, crepe hung from their masts or the flags lowered.

Herrick, who had refused to desert Paris when the enemy pounded at her gates in war time, was leaving France for the last time and Breton peasants paid as sincere tribute as did official Paris.

The funeral train arrived here today after a night trip from Paris. A small group of personal friends had accompanied Mrs. Parnely Herrick, the ambassador's daughter-in-law to the Montparnasse station in Paris, where they were met by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, Ambassador Quinones De Leon of Spain and other notables.

Mrs. Herrick left a final token in Paris in memory of the ambassador—a wreath which she placed on the tomb of the unknown soldier under the Arc De Triomphe after cathedral funeral services.

BUCHAREST, Roumania, April 5.—Reports received here today said that twenty persons were killed and sixty were injured when the Kishineff-Bucharest express train was derailed near Buzen, sixty miles northeast of Bucharest.

GASOLINE TAX BILL UP BEFORE SENATE; ATTACKED IN HOUSE

Quick Passage Is Expected; Cooper Is Favorable

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—The Sullivan Bostwick bill raising the state gasoline tax from three to four cents a gallon, came before the state senate today with the stamp of approval of the house.

The house passed the measure by a vote of 98 to 29 after a disagreement as to the method of distributing the proposed tax was ironed out.

The measure will raise an additional revenue of $8,000,500 annually and has the approval of Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

Quick passage in the senate is anticipated inasmuch as the senate is solidly Republican and has worked in harmony with the administration.

Rural members, with the aid of Hamilton, Franklin, Mahoning and Lucas County delegations pushed the bill through the house.

As passed by the house, the revenue would be distributed as follows:

Sixty per cent to the state for highway construction, reconstruction and widening.

Ten per cent equally among the 1385 townships, to be spent on "improved dirt roads of the secondary" or county system by the township trustees.

The bill was virtually rewritten by amendments presented by Rep. Dallas Sullivan, Union County, who said the amendments were agreed upon by the various factions, including administration forces.

Rep. J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, made an effort to have passage of the bill postponed until today so the members could study the amendments, but his motion was voted down, 91 to 15.

Opposition to the tax increase was led by Rep. Joseph G. Ehrlich, Cleveland, and Rep. J. J. Hoover, Canton, who denounced the measure "as without justification."

"You've found what you think is a painless method of extracting money from the people," declared Ehrlich, "but you're going to overdo it. The people are getting suspicious. They're demanding why the need for all this money."

Here are two interests back of this bill. One is the crushed rock and slag outfit. The other is the cement and brick crowd.

They're the ones who'll eventually get the money. I feel sorry for the rock and slag outfit. They really started this demand for more money, but the brick and cement interests are going to get most of it.

"How long are we going to keep this up, adding to the taxes on the motorists? It's about time to say to the material interests that they've gone far enough. Curtail the road progress if necessary. Don't dig into the pockets of the people and compel them to pay a twenty per cent tax on gasoline."

Hoover denounced the tax increase as an unjustified imposition on the people.

"I represent the poor man who works in the shops, as well as the big fellow," Hoover told the house. "The poor man doesn't want this tax. It means he's going to have to pay more for milk and bread and other necessities, because the producers of necessities will pass their share of this tax on to the consumer of necessities."

"This tax won't hurt the moneyed man. But it hits the poor man and his family and hits them hard. If more money has to be raised, get it from those who can afford to pay."

"This whole fight is one between the poor man and big business. The first can't protect himself here and the other can and does, so the poor man pays."

"The gas tax advocates told us two years ago they wouldn't ask any more, if we voted the one-cent increase they asked them. Their promise wasn't any good then and it isn't any good now, so it's about time to listen to someone else."

Floor Leader Arthur Hamilton, as spokesman for administration forces, answered the attacks by urging the house to pass the bill without further delay.

The vote on the bill was the largest cast on any measure this session, 127 members recording themselves. There are only 132 representatives.

"SALARY BUYING"
BILL IS APPROVED

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—Governor Myers Y. Cooper today signed the Marshall bill restricting operations of "salary buyers."

The bill places the loan business under regulation through licensing in the department of industrial relations.

Henceforward lenders will be unable to charge more than 3 per cent a month on loans up to $300. The measure is aimed at lenders who have been charging as high as 25 per cent a month on small loans, and is designed to protect the salaried man.

NEW GAZETTE SERIAL IS MYSTERY

Chilling, spine-tingling mystery is the theme of the new GAZETTE serial story, to start in this paper next Wednesday at the conclusion of "Passed Up."

J. Jefferson Parjeon, grandson of Joseph Jefferson, the famous actor, and one of the most brilliant of the younger generation of mystery writers, is author of "UNDERGROUND," the new serial.

Parjeon is author of "The House of Disappearance," "Shadows by the Sea," "Number 17" and other famous mystery stories. He is an ardent apostle of that type of modern mystery story which is regaining lost popularity in the field of fiction.

If taste in matters of fiction runs in cycles, then the pendulum is swinging now to mystery, largely through the fine writing being done by a number of these young American writers. THE GAZETTE feels that it is catering to this new taste in arranging to publish "Underground," the first thriller in serial form for many years. It will be published in generous installments amply and beautifully illustrated. Begin with the first installment.

MUNICIPAL COURT BILL FOR XENIA PASSES HOUSE EASILY

XENIA ARMY BILL ON HOUSE CALENDAR FOR EARLY PASSAGE

Measure Includes An Appropriation For Four Cities

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—Ohio will have seven new National Guard armories if the general assembly passes the supplementary appropriations bill without amendments. Three armories are included in the departmental appropriation for the adjutant general. These will provide housing for units in Toledo, Berea, and Westerville. A total appropriation of $170,000 is granted the department in the general revenue measure. Of this total $85,000 will be used for the Toledo structure.

Four additional armories, at Piqua, Alliance, Mt. Vernon, and Xenia, are provided in the second appropriations measure which was on the house calendar today. The proposals for buildings at Fremont, Dayton, and Springfield were referred by the joint finance committee which reported out the supplementary bill.

While the fate of the second appropriations measure is not assured, legislative leaders predict the bill will pass with few, if any curtailment amendments.

Sen. William A. Clark, Urbana, father of the Piqua bill, is also sponsoring a companion measure authorizing the adjutant general to sell a state-owned tract in Piqua. The revenue is to be used toward the acquisition of an armory site. This bill is billed for an early hearing on the floor, Clark says.

The armories at Piqua and Alliance, planned to house artillery units, will cost the state $75,000 each. The Mt. Vernon building requires a $60,000 appropriation and Xenia, $50,000.

COUSINS SHOT IN FIGHT OVER CREAM

TOLEDO, O., April 5.—Charles Haddad, 65, and his cousin Ellis Haddad, 45, proprietors of a grocery store, who were shot in a quarrel with a customer over a bottle of cream, still were in a serious condition today.

The elder Haddad, wounded in the abdomen, was reported in a critical condition. Ellis Haddad was wounded in the side and his condition is not regarded as grave.

Sam Vincent, 37, arrested after the shooting, admitted he had shot the grocers, but claimed he fired only after he had been threatened.

OHIO LEGISLATURE TODAY
Emmons "Conservation" bill and Herbert-Martin election law recodification, up for passage in house.

Norton highway bill scheduled for approval by senate. Martin bill, to give Hamilton County two additional common pleas judges, up for house consideration.

Supplemental finance bill, appropriating nearly $1,000,000, and Rommibus "sundries claims" bill, carrying $600,000, up for passage in house.

Senate may suspend rules and "railroad" gas tax bill through.

HAVER DE GRACE, Md., April 5.—With Herbert Hedeman of Australia leading in the elapsed time standings, C. C. Pyle's trans-continental runners started today for Baltimore.

Paul Simpson of Burlington, N. C., fell into fifth place from first yesterday.

Of the hundred "bumblers" who left New York less than half of them were expected to reach Baltimore. Each town so far has seen someone drop out.

Murky weather today did not add to the enthusiasm with which the men started on their trail to Baltimore.

Standings for the three lapsed time leaders as the runners started for Baltimore were:

1. Herbert Hedeman, Australia and New York, 22:49:13.
2. John Salo, Passiac, N. J., 22:55:25.
3. Ed Gardner, Seattle, Wash., 23:09:56.
Mike Joyce, Cleveland, had a lapsed time of 23:59:35.

First Pictures of Lindy's Sister

MRS. GANN GIVEN ADVANTAGE IN SOCIAL WAR RAGING IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Washington's latest social war raged on today with Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, half sister and official hostess of Vice President Charles Curtis, at least temporarily, in the lead.

For they were fully recognized as highest ranking among thirty guests entertained at dinner last night by the socially important Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson, Secretary of Navy and Mrs. Adams and Senator and Mrs. Sackett were seated below the vice president and second lady of the land.

It was the first important test of social strength since Curtis announced in a statement to the press that he had appealed to Secretary of State Stimson from a ruling by former Secretary Kellogg that Mrs. Gann was not entitled to all the honors due a vice president's wife.

The ruling was made soon after Curtis' inauguration to guide hostesses of the diplomatic corps and it started a social controversy such as Washington has not experienced since the Jackson administration when the cabinet was broken up by a somewhat similar conflict.

Curtis' statement was issued Wednesday and that night he and Mrs. Gann were guests at a small White House dinner where they were given places of honor but the affair was not considered significant as a precedent because there was no woman present who could have taken precedence over Mrs. Gann even as the sister of the vice president.

Last night it was different. Anderson was once ambassador to Sweden. He is a millionaire. His home on Massachusetts Ave., is the rendezvous for the elite of the capital when the Andersons are at home. Mrs. Anderson's precedent would be followed by other unofficial hostesses.

Mrs. Gann, wearing a spring-like yellow evening gown, entered the Anderson dining room last night on the arm of her host and Curtis escorted his hostess. Mrs. Gann sat at Anderson's right and Curtis at Mrs. Anderson's right. Mr. Gann, as usual, was seated with the less important guests but this time nothing as there is no contest over his status.

Some of Mrs. Gann's friends charge the ladies of the luncheon club with responsibility for the whole affair.

Mrs. Anderson's precedent does not, of course, settle the matter. Washington matrons are not easily beaten as President Jackson discovered. There were no foreign diplomats at her dinner and it is their order of precedence in relation to Mrs. Gann which is the real issue.

HAVER, France, April 5.—Frank B. Kellogg, arriving here today on the Isle De France, said he was "amused" by the importance given his ruling in Washington while secretary of state that Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, must rank beneath the wives of foreign diplomats at official dinners.

"It is foolish talk," said Kellogg in reference to the question of Mrs. Gann's social status, which was protested by the vice president.

"The action was only an ordinary ruling of the state department," he added, "and it was a relatively unimportant matter as compared to the serious business of affairs of state."

Kellogg, accompanied by his wife, was en route to Paris. The former secretary of state was slightly ill when the vessel docked at Plymouth yesterday, having been confined to bed by a cold which he caught on board.

CONGRESSMAN DIES
LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—C. W. Roark of Greenville who was elected congressman of the third Kentucky district and was to have taken the oath of office of April 15, died here today from a nerve disorder. Roark was to have succeeded Congressman John W. Moore. His campaign is believed to have led to his collapse.

SUDDEN RAIN STORM CAUSES STREAMS TO OVERFLOW IN STATE

Cleveland Zoo Is Flooded; Traffic Is Disrupted

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 5.—Marooned in the Crab Creek area by a terrific rain-storm, scores of persons were rescued in boats by firemen today.

The storm came up with such suddenness and was so vicious that the Crab Creek residents were isolated before they could escape.

Every available fireman was called out this morning and at 8:30 a. m., more than 100 persons had been rescued.

The dam at Harding park, in Hubbard, was endangered by the rushing waters of the stream feeding it and officials feared it would break.

At 10 a. m. one corner of the dam was torn off.

A break would flood the entire lower end of Hubbard.

Tons of sand were hauled to the dam in an effort to prevent a complete break. Attempts also were being made to divert the stream.

Street car, railroad and bus service was paralyzed for a time.

A brilliant electrical display accompanied the storm and several buildings were struck.

CLEVELAND, O., April 5.—Air mail service was tied up and rail traffic was delayed when a terrific rain and electrical storm swept the Cleveland area early today.

Lightning struck a house in East Cleveland and exploded a gas main on the south side. The latter blew up with a roar and a spectacular fire followed.

Rocky River, swollen by the rains, threatened for a time to leave its banks, and gave rise to reports that nine girls were marooned in a summer cottage on the shore.

Waters of Big Creek rose with astounding rapidity and Park Director Newman ordered out a crew at dawn to rescue animals at the Brookside Zoo.

The stream flooded the pond where the water fowl live and had crept to the basement of the zoological building when the crew was called out.

Firemen rescued one motorist from the water that flooded the park roads.

An air mail pilot was forced down in the storm at Bellefonte, Pa., and westward planes remained here all night.

The gas main blast shook the surrounding territory and flames leaped 100 feet into the air. The gas was shut off before much damage was done.

The storm was reported general throughout northeastern Ohio.

LONG FRIENDS FIGHTING BACK

BATON ROUGE, La., April 5.—Governor Huey P. Long fought back today at his accusers in the Louisiana house of representatives who seek to oust him on charges ranging from bribery to conspiracy to murder.

As the lower branch of the assembly convened for the third day's hearings of nineteen impeachment counts voted against the chief executive, a resolution bearing 4,000 signatures and demanding dismissal of all impeachment charges was presented to the speaker of the house.

The resolution was passed at a mass meeting last night, which climaxed an all day demonstration of Long supporters from all parts of the state.

Peering himself as the champion of an "oppressed people," the youthful governor delivered a dramatic and impassioned speech of defense. His accusers were following "the old corrupt system of politics," he charged.

GIRL'S TORSO REVEALS CRIME

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—A crime rivaling the Hickman murder case in brutality was believed by police to have been disclosed today with the finding of a nude torso of a girl in the rain swollen Los Angeles River near Compton.

The body of the girl, who was about 18 years old and an expectant mother, was discovered by a Mexican laborer last night. The head, arms and legs had been severed. There was no clue or mark to indicate identity.

R. R. Moreland, Compton undertaker, said that the girl had not been dead more than twenty-four hours.

Juan Manriquez was standing on the river bank when he saw the mutilated torso float by and recovered it.

J. Jefferson Farjeon, grandson of Joseph Jefferson, the famous actor, and one of the most brilliant of the younger generation of mystery writers, is author of "UNDERGROUND," the new serial.

Farjeon is author of "The House of Disappearance," "Shadows by the Sea," "Green Dragon," "Number 17" and other famous mystery stories. He is an ardent apostle of that type of modern mystery story which is retaining lost popularity in the field of fiction.

If taste in matters of fiction runs in cycles, then the pendulum is swinging now to mystery, largely through the fine writing being done by a number of these young American writers. THE GAZETTE feels that it is catering to this new taste in arranging to publish "Underground," the first thriller it has used in serial form for many years. It will be published in generous installments amply and beautifully illustrated. Begin with the first installment.

MUNICIPAL COURT BILL FOR XENIA PASSES HOUSE EASILY

COLUMBUS, O., April 5.—The Xenia municipal court bill cleared its first legislative hurdle today when the house of representatives passed it by a vote of 99 to 0. The bill now goes to the senate.

The proposed court will have jurisdiction over Xenia and Xenia Twp., according to the terms of the measure. With its installation the present mayor's court and two justices of the peace courts will be abolished.

The municipal judge would receive a minimum salary of $1800. Of this total the city is to pay $1350 and Greene County, $450. The judge would serve a four year term. A vacancy in the office between the dates of election would be filled by the governor.

The Williamson bill provides that the court would have jurisdiction over misdemeanors, ordinance violations, and common pleas suits involving less than $1000.

Xenia city solicitor is to be the courts prosecuting attorney, the bill stipulates. The measure also provides for necessary clerks, bailiffs, and clerical help.

FEDERALS CHASING REBELS ROUTED AT BATTLE OF REFORMA

Report Many Dead And Many Captive After "Slaughter"

MEXICO, CITY, April 5.—Victorious federal troops continued to press northward today to round up remnants of the insurgent Escobar army, in full retreat from Reforma, where, according to government reports, more than 1,000 rebels were killed in battle.

The official announcement said Escobar's army of approximately 5,000 men also had lost 2,000 prisoners and 500 wounded in the "butchery" at Reforma.

General Juan A. Almazan, who commanded the federal attack at Reforma, reported to Minister of War Plutarco Elias Calles that he expected his cavalry to reach Camargo, forty miles north of Jimenez, today. He added, however, that he did not expect any concerted resistance from the rebels until the federal army arrived at Chihuahua City, the insurgent stronghold.

Meanwhile the army of 5,000 men, which has been held in reserve at Torreón pending reports in the Jimenez sector, was preparing for its southern campaign against the Cristeros, the religious rebels. This army, which will be led by General Cedillo, was reinforced by approximately 1,000 troops from Vera Cruz, including many volunteers. It was announced.

The Cedillo column will campaign in Guanajuato, Jalisco and Zacatecas. It will concentrate in Zacatecas and the first section of the troops will strike in Durango.

General Calles notified the government that General Almazan was of the opinion that the rebel route was decisive and while their dispersed groups might reunite, there was only a slight possibility of rebel resistance south of Chihuahua City.

Almazan closed his communique to Calles by saying: "The traitor leaders soon will be exhibiting their shamelessness in foreign lands." Apparently Almazan believed the rebel leaders were fleeing to the United States border.

Calles' message to the government came from Torreón, and reported that both the federal and rebel injured were sent to hospitals at Monterey and Torreón. Calles said that no figures of federal casualties were available because the check-up had not been completed.

Senate may suspend rules and "railroad" gas tax bill through.

AUSTRALIAN LEADS BUNION BRIGADE

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 5.—With Herbert Hedeman of Australia leading in the elapsed time standings, C. C. Pyle's trans-continental runners started today for Baltimore.

Paul Simpson of Burlington, N. C., fell into fifth place from first yesterday.

Of the hundred "bunioners" who left New York less than half of them were expected to reach Baltimore. Each town so far has seen someone drop out.

Murky weather today did not add to the enthusiasm with the men started on their trail to Baltimore.

First Pictures of Lindy's Sister

MRS. GANN GIVEN ADVANTAGE IN SOCIAL WAR RAGING IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Washington's latest social war raged on today with Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, half sister and official hostess of Vice President Charles Curtis, at least temporarily, in the lead.

For they were fully recognized as highest ranking among thirty guests entertained at dinner last night by the socially important Mr. and Mrs. Lars Anderson, Secretary of Navy and Mrs. Adams and Senator and Mrs. Sackett were seated below the vice president and second lady of the land.

It was the first important test of social strength since Curtis announced in a statement to the press that he had appealed to Secretary of State Stimson from a ruling by former Secretary Kellogg that Mrs. Gann was not entitled to all the honors due a vice president's wife.

The ruling was made soon after Curtis' inauguration to guide hostesses of the diplomatic corps and it started a social controversy such as Washington has not experienced since the Jackson administration, when the cabinet was broken up by a somewhat similar conflict.

Curtis' statement was issued Wednesday and that night he and Mrs. Gann were guests at a small White House dinner where they were given places of honor but the affair was not considered significant as a precedent because there was no woman present who could have taken precedence over Mrs. Gann even as the sister of the vice president.

Last night it was different. Anderson was once ambassador to Sweden. He is a millionaire. His home on Massachusetts Ave., is the rendezvous for the elite of the capital when the Andersons are at home. Mrs. Anderson's precedent would be followed by other unofficial hostesses.

Mrs. Gann, wearing a spring-like yellow evening gown, entered the Anderson dining room last night on the arm of her host and Curtis escorted his hostess. Mrs. Gann sat at Anderson's right and Curtis at Mrs. Anderson's right. Mr. Gann, as usual, was seated with the less important guests but this meant nothing as there is no contest over his status.

Some of Mrs. Gann's friends charge the ladies of the luncheon club with responsibility for the whole affair.

Mrs. Anderson's precedent does not, of course, settle the matter. Washington matrons are not easily beaten as President Jackson discovered. There were no foreign diplomats at her dinner and it is their order of precedence in relation to Mrs. Gann which is the real issue.

ACCUSED BIGAMIST COMMITS SUICIDE

HAVRE, France, April 5.—Frank B. Kellogg, arriving here today on the Isle De France, said he was "annoyed" by the importance given his ruling in Washington while secretary of state that Mrs. Edward E. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, must rank beneath the wives of foreign diplomats at official dinners.

"It is foolish talk," said Kellogg in reference to the question of Mrs. Gann's social status, which was protested by the vice president.

Kellogg referred briefly to the controversy which arose over the ruling.

"The action was only an ordinary ruling of the state department," he added, "and it was a relatively unimportant matter as compared to the serious business of affairs of state."

Kellogg, accompanied by his wife, was en route to Paris. The former secretary of state was slightly ill when the vessel docked at Plymouth yesterday, having been confined to bed by a cold which he caught on board.

CONGRESSMAN DIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 5.—C. W. Roark of Greenville who was elected congressman of the third Kentucky district and was to have taken the oath of office of April 15, died here today from a nerve disorder. Roark was to have succeeded Congressman John W. Moore. His campaign is believed to have led to his collapse.

SUDDEN RAIN STORM CAUSES STREAMS TO OVERFLOW IN STATE

Cleveland Zoo Is Flooded; Traffic Is Disrupted

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 5.—Marooned in the Crab Creek area by a terrific rain-storm, scores of persons were rescued in boats by firemen today.

The storm came up with such suddenness and was so vicious that the Crab Creek residents were isolated before they could escape.

Every available fireman was called out this morning and at 8:30 a. m., more than 100 persons had been rescued.

The dam at Harding park, in Hubbard, was endangered by the rushing waters of the stream feeding it and officials feared it would break.

At 10 a. m. one corner of the dam was torn off.

A break would flood the entire lower end of Hubbard.

Tons of sand were hauled to the dam in an effort to prevent a complete break. Attempts also were being made to divert the stream.

Street car, railroad and bus service was paralyzed for a time.

A brilliant electrical display accompanied the storm and several buildings were struck.

CLEVELAND, O., April 5.—Air mail service was tied up and rail traffic was delayed when a terrific rain and electrical storm swept the Cleveland area early today.

Lightning struck a house in East Cleveland and exploded a gas main on the south side. The latter blew up with a roar and a spectacular fire followed.

Rocky River, swollen by the rains, threatened for a time to leave its banks, and gave rise to reports that nine girls were marooned in a summer cottage on the shore.

Waters of Big Creek rose with astounding rapidity and Park Director Newman ordered out a crew at dawn to rescue animals at the Brookside Zoo.

The stream flooded the pond where the water fowl live and had crept to the basement of the zoological building when the crew was called out.

Firemen rescued one motorist from the water that flooded the park roads.

An air mail pilot was forced down in the storm at Bellfountain, Pa., and westward planes remained here all night.

The gas main blast shook the surrounding territory and flames leaped 100 feet into the air. The gas was shut off before much damage was done.

The storm was reported general throughout northeastern Ohio.

LONG FRIENDS FIGHTING BACK

BATON ROUGE, La., April 5.—Governor Huey P. Long fought back today at his accusers in the Louisiana house of representatives who seek to oust him on charges ranging from bribery to conspiracy to murder.

As the lower branch of the assembly convened for the third day's hearings of nineteen impeachment counts voted against the chief executive, a resolution bearing 4,000 signatures and demanding dismissal of all impeachment charges was presented to the speaker of the house.

The resolution was passed at a mass meeting last night, which climaxed an all day demonstration of Long supporters from all parts of the state.

Petitioning himself as the champion of an "oppressed people," the youthful governor delivered a dramatic and impassioned speech of defense. His accusers were following "the old corrupt system of politics," he charged.

GIRL'S TORSO REVEALS CRIME

LOS ANGELES, April 5.—A crime rivaling the Hickman murder case in brutality was believed today with the finding of a nude torso of a girl in the rain swollen Los Angeles River near Compton.

The body of the girl, who was about 18 years old and an expectant mother, was discovered by a Mexican laborer last night. The head, arms and legs had been severed. There was no clue or mark to indicate identity.

R. R. Moreland, Compton undertaker, said that the girl had not been dead more than twenty-four hours.

Juan Manriquez was standing on the river bank when he saw the mutilated torso float by and recovered it.

"KONJOLA WORKED WONDERS FOR ME," SAYS TOLEDO MAN

Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Yield To Advanced Medicine; Catarrh, Too, is Relieved.

"Konjola worked wonders for me, after I had abandoned hope of ever being well again," said Mr. Jacob Rosenberger, 2114 Elm St., Toledo.

"For a long time I had been the helpless victim of a disordered stomach. My appetite left me and sometimes the sight of food nauseated me. I suffered almost immediately after eating the lightest of foods from gas bloating. My liver became lazy and sluggish. My system was filled with bile. Nasal catarrh added considerable trouble. "It was a desperate case that I asked Konjola to work on. But Konjola went right to work. It cleansed and strengthened my system. My stomach resumed its natural functioning. My appetite increased. My digestion was restored. The catarrhal condition has been almost completely dried up. I know that what Konjola has done for me it will do for others, and I praise it to everyone."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. ## CASTLES IN SPAIN

By Laird

We all have our dreams, our Castles in Spain. Sometimes they do concern medieval buildings on the mountainside and dark-haired senoritas twanging the guitar. Sometimes, though, one may be of nothing more lordly than a wee rose-bowered cottage in the country and children playing in the grass while a sweet-faced woman watches and smiles. Some dreams are of wanderings in far-flung lands, of tropic, moonlit seas and the scent of jungle flowers or starlight in the desert.

Again, we look to the hills and gain strength, or to the great open spaces of the west. Again, we dream of wandering in the great silence of the frozen north, watching the lights of the aurora borealis.

Whatever our Castles they make endurable the daily grind, the cares and worries of a workaday world. Some day, we feel, we will drop this grubbing existence and fare forth into our land of adventure and romance—our Castle in Spain.

REPORT 25 KILLED BY DRY ENFORCERS

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Twenty-five persons were killed during the last fifteen months by federal agents engaged in enforcement of the prohibition law, an official report made public at the treasury disclosed today.

In 1928 there was a total of twenty-three persons killed and only two in the first three months of 1929. Figures for 1927 were not cited by the report, but it was said there was a material reduction. This improvement was attributed to an order issued by the treasury against the promiscuous flourishing, display and use of firearms in enforcement work.

Among the twenty-five killed in the last fifteen months were sixteen civilians and nine government agents. Raids and other enforcement operations by the prohibition bureau accounted for the death of eleven citizens and seven agents.

Two mounted inspectors of the customs patrol were killed by smugglers.

Coast guard activities accounted for the killing of five civilians. The coast guard was the only enforcement branch that had no losses within its own ranks as the result of prohibition enforcement.

THE NET OF LAW

THE net of law is spread so wide,
No sinner from its sweep may hide.

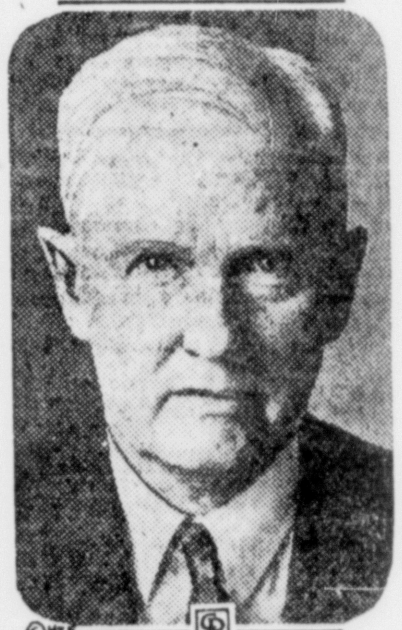

Its meshes are so fine and strong,
They take in every child of wrong.

The state senate still has under consideration appointment of three new trustees of the O. S. and S. O. Home made by Governor Myers Y. Cooper Wednesday.

Ralph H. Carroll, Cleveland, now serving his first term, named to succeed himself for the term ending in April, 1931, is a former state department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans organization and is also president of the Lions Club in Cleveland. He is connected with the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Homer M. Edwards, Ironton, O., appointed to take the place of Marcus R. Limb, Wooster, for the term ending in April, 1933, is a former private secretary of the late United States Senator Frank B. Willis. He is also a World War veteran and Legionnaire, having served overseas with the 32nd trench mortar battery.

The third appointee, Herbert Mooney, Woodfield, O., who succeeds Reil G. Allen, Washington C. H., for the term ending in April, 1934, is also a World War veteran. He is a former state department commander of the American Legion. During the late war he was a first lieutenant of infantry and also saw air service. He is a banker at Woodfield.

All of the appointees are Republicans and the new board, if the appointments are confirmed by the senate, will be made up of three Republicans and two Democrats, whose terms do not expire.

REPORT 25 KILLED BY DRY ENFORCERS

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Twenty-five persons were killed during the last fifteen months by federal agents engaged in enforcement of the prohibition law, an official report made public at the treasury disclosed today.

In 1928 there was a total of twenty-three persons killed and only two in the first three months of 1929. Figures for 1927 were not cited by the report, but it was said there was a material reduction. This improvement was attributed to an order issued by the treasury against the promiscuous flourishing, display and use of firearms in enforcement work.

Among the twenty-five killed in the last fifteen months were sixteen civilians and nine government agents. Raids and other enforcement operations by the prohibition bureau accounted for the death of eleven citizens and seven agents.

Two mounted inspectors of the customs patrol were killed by smugglers.

Coast guard activities accounted for the killing of five civilians. The coast guard was the only enforcement branch that had no losses within its own ranks as the result of prohibition enforcement.

LESS THRIFT BEING SHOWN BY PUPILS

Pupils in the Xenia public grade schools were less thrifty during the three school weeks of March than during the same period in the corresponding month last year, according to Superintendent Louis Hammerle.

The total amount of money deposited in the school savings account was $153.61, which is $23.66 less than for the same three weeks one year ago.

McKinley, with $97.97, exceeded last year by $3.88, but was the only school to show a gain. Spring Hill deposited $40.76, which was $9.76 less than last March; Orient Hill paid in $13.06, or $8.40 less; and Central first grade deposited $14.81, which was $6.92 less.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SHEPHERD SAVES—For thus saith the Lord God; As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered. Ezekiel 34:11, 12.

BUSINESS AND POLITICAL SURPRISES

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, it is said, will shortly return to business. This presumably means that he will quit active politics. Southern Democrats particularly will be cheered by this prospect. The selection of the chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors corporation to manage his campaign was understood at the time to have been personal with Governor Smith. That it was a political mistake soon became apparent. The result of the selection was to further alienate those factions in the Democratic party unfriendly to its candidate and deepen their prejudices. Chairman Raskob's resignation, which has been widely demanded by these factions, would conceivably do something to hasten the reformation of the Democratic front.

A political manager, Chairman Raskob revealed no such genius as he displayed in Wall street. As a matter of fact he was a flop. The campaign he directed cost the Democratic party more than $7,000,000 and ended in both the defeat and disruption of that party. The application of "business methods" to politics left the Democratic national committee $1,500,000 in the hole. Although Governor Smith has appealed to the members of the party to make good this amount and has offered to throw in the profits from the publication of his collected campaign speeches, there has been no rush to pay for the horse that died at the polls last November. Considerably less than one-tenth of the deficit has been raised to date.

Chairman Raskob will go back to business a wiser man. At least he must have learned that politics and business, as they are played in this country, are two very different games. Occasionally a Mark Hanna appears, who has a genius for both; but the number of politicians who have failed in business added to the number of successful business men who have failed to illuminate politics by their brilliance, afford abundant evidence that the two things are not easily mixed. The hard-boiled politician, who has grown gray in the harness, can still outwit the average bright young man who breezes into the game as a temporary diversion.

THE REATER GENIUS

The remains of Marshal Foch rest near those of Napoleon Bonaparte. If, in the association, there is honor for the memory of either man, it is that of the Corsican which acquires lustre. Bonaparte may have been the greater military genius of the two, though comparison is difficult, if not quite impossible, because of the diversity of the conditions under which the men worked. But Foch performed the task which fell to him as skillfully, as completely, and as successfully as it is conceivable any man could possibly have performed it. And whereas the emperor exploited and all but ruined France and Europe; Foch served and saved both. Civilization would have been better off without Bonaparte; it might have been in a very sad way today but for Foch.

The missions to the savages in foreign lands may be prospering, but those to the savages in this country seem to be having a hard time.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

NEW YORK — Will Rogers was discussing the new traffic regulations in the Broadway Belt. "I don't think much of them," he grunted. "I have a better plan. Traffic congestion would be relieved if all cars going east would go on Mondays, and all going west would go on Tuesdays."

"Well," well'd a listener, "how about north and south?" "There ain't no north and south," reminded Rogers. "We're all one!"

THE SQUELCH ADEQUATE The expression "Don't be so stage!" in the show business, you probably know, means "Don't be ritz or high-hat!" Mr. Pihoda of the Herald Tribune, however, crushed a Troy whoopee maker in a night club this week: "Don't be so up-stage!"

HANS ACROSS THE SEA The papers recently recorded the trying experience of Elsie Janis in Paris, where she was actually heckled from the stage for some reason or other. Herb Williams, whose comedy has sent audiences into laugh spasms all over the world, went through the same form of razzberry when he recently played in Germany. It appears that the German players went on strike when they discovered that Williams was getting more money than any German actor rated. So they evened matters by coming to the theatre by the thousands and whistling throughout his act. He had to leave the stage.

INCIDENTALLY At the Columbia here on a Sunday, once, George Rosendor's act was rudely interrupted by a galleryite who made a laugh-grooving noise with his mouth. Rosendor stopped his routine and urged the galleryite to look at the face of the man who heckled him. Everybody turned to look at the lad. Then Rosendor yelled: "The face, folks, will give you a rough idea why we have birth control!"

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

COST OF CRIME

The total revenue of government in the United States—federal, state and local—is said to be about eleven billions of dollars a year. Eleven billions is approximately the amount Uncle Sam loaned European countries during and after the war. And it is interesting to learn that statisticians figure crime, in one way and another, costs this country about eleven billions. Think of the government employees—federal, state and local—and the manifold institutions in every country in America that are made necessary by the tendency to criminal activity on the part of the human being.

CONTROL

An old proverb says that "love is without prudence and anger without control." The most dangerous tendency in humans is the tendency to surrender themselves to the dominance of their instincts and impulses and emotions. It is the business of the really civilized man to control his emotions—not be controlled by them. Right at that point lies the line of difference between man and the lower animals from which some say he has sprung.

APOLOGIES

Some folks refuse to make an apology when they have merely been misunderstood, although they have hurt somebody else very much. They think they are absolved because their intentions were right although they did not make themselves clear. The fact is they are guilty and owe an apology just the same. Just because one cannot make himself clear does not excuse him for hurting another.

POLICY

Policy is a very important word. One thing we ought to get as early in life as we have intelligence to devise it—and that is a policy. We ought to lay out for ourselves a definite course of action. There will always be deviations and exceptions. We shall doubtless fall short of our expectations. We must accept such failures and not be too dissatisfied by them. We should not change our policy unless we have sound reasons and much evidence for doing it.

CONTINUATION OF ROTATING ARMY OFFICES ANNOUNCED

By JAMES W. GOOD Secretary of War

(James William Good was born at Cedar Rapids, Ia. Sept. 24, 1866. He is a graduate of Coe college, later obtaining an L. L. B. degree at the University of Michigan. From 1906 to 1908 he was city attorney of Cedar Rapids. He was elected to congress the following year from the fifth Iowa district, serving until 1923. For two terms he was chairman of the committee on appropriations. He then resumed his law practice at Chicago until recently, when he was appointed secretary of war by President Hoover. His home is now in Evanston, Ill.)

The question of reappointment of bureau chiefs and their assistants has been under consideration by me for a considerable period.

Under the national defense act officers commissioned in the non-combatant branches are not eligible for selection as combatant general officers of the line of the army. In order that more officers of these branches may have the prospect of becoming generals during their service it would appear desirable and in the interest of these departments that appointments as chiefs of these branches be not made permanent in character.

For the above reason it is desirable to establish a general principle of rotation in the branches for the benefit of the service in general and in order to provide greater opportunity to all.

While there may be occasions when the best interest of the service may necessitate exceptions, I have adopted a general policy of rotation concerning appointment of chiefs and assistant chiefs of bureaus as I believe that the application of this general principle is in accordance with the intent of congress and for the good of the service as a whole.

I desire to emphasize the fact that it is our policy to maintain in time of peace only a skeletonized army, and that it is therefore of the utmost importance that the chiefs of branches should be highly efficient at all times to meet any emergency that might arise. I think that this might be assured by rotation in office that would bring periodically to the highest position in branches, men who recently have had intimate contact with troops and field services and who will, in consequence, bring fresh and progressive ideas and recent varied experience to their task thus vitalizing the whole military establishment.

The policy announced by my predecessor appears to be sound and in the interests of good administration. It will be followed in the future.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

SHESTNUT, BROWN AND BLACK

The darker-haired women of the world have a fortunate gift in common—their hair is usually thicker and stronger than that of their blonde-haired sisters.

But dark hair—like blonde—requires painstaking care to keep it soft, shining and healthy. Where blondes are inclined to "fuss" with their hair to keep it light in color and fluffy, the brunette is more inclined to neglect hers. For this reason dark hair is less likely to be noticed for its color and beauty than the blonde.

Too often we hear a brunette's hair spoken of merely as "dark." In reality there are numerous shades of dark hair, ranging from the warm chestnut through the medium brown tones to dark brown and black. Each shade has its own lovely lights and tints, which proper care will bring out and emphasize.

Hot oil shampoos may be used by the brunette to good advantage, especially if her scalp is inclined to be dry and her hair brittle, with a tendency to split at the ends. Even for oily scalp the hot oil shampoo is often recommended, since some oily conditions indicate, not a well-nourished scalp, but a tax state of activity in the oil glands. Treatment with hot oil will feed the scalp and ward off the itching and graying that comes to dark hair oftentimes early in life.

The question of reappointment of bureau chiefs and their assistants has been under consideration by me for a considerable period.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Senators Morris Sheppard of Texas and Wesley L. Jones of Washington agree that crime is too prevalent. Thus agreeing, they agree also in commending President Hoover's commission plan, to decide on the best means of strengthening law enforcement.

Wets practically are a unit in attributing the so-called "crime-wave" mainly to prohibition.

As authors, respectively, of the Eighteenth amendment and the recently adopted "five-and-ten act," stiffening the minimum penalty even for first violations of Volsteadism, Senators Sheppard and Jones, perhaps, are the two best qualified members of congress to dispute this anti-dry contention—which both do, vigorously.

"Indeed," says Senator Sheppard, "the crime situation probably would be worse than it is today, but for prohibition."

At first the Texas senator, whether crime really has increased as much as has been represented—although even so, he expressed approval of the Hoover investigation—since "there is no reason why we should not desire still better conditions," as he expressed it.

And why more crimes of violence? "That," replied the Texas senator, "is precisely what we need an investigation to determine—that, and all other problems involved in the situation."

"For one thing, we obviously need more courts."

not intended — as specifically stated."

Senator Jones readily admits that crime has increased.

"It appears," he thinks, "to be a post-war development—perhaps partly due to the war itself, probably partly due to the fact that we live differently today from the life of the pre-war period."

"Besides, we are hampered by legal technicalities."

"While I am a friend of our constitution, it may be that one of our difficulties lies in the fact that our constitution is written. England's is not. There is no getting back of court proceedings. Here an appeal is so easy."

Senator Jones was sponsor, at a recent session of congress, of a proposal to limit the right of appeal, in certain cases, strictly to grounds of law, leaving the verdict of juries unassailable.

Household Hints

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Spanish Steak, Browned Potatoes, Creamed Asparagus, Lettuce and Watercress, Halved Grape Fruits, Coffee. The dinner menu is fairly heavy, so I have given you a light fruit dessert. The grape fruit may either be served in the shells as suggested, simply halved and the pulp loosened and sweetened to taste, or it may be taken out of the shell and served with orange sections in sherbet cups. Bananas may also be added.

Today's Recipes.

Spanish Steak—Have one and one-half pounds round steak cut one inch thick. Dust with salt, pepper and flour. Fry until brown on both sides in a little fat. Add one sliced onion, one green pepper, and one large tomato, fresh or canned. Continue frying until vegetables are partly cooked. Cover with boiling water and allow to simmer about two hours until tender. Thicken gravy and serve.

SUGGESTIONS

Paint the Rug. If you have a carpet or rug that is badly faded why not give it a new color?

Either use a very thin paint or dissolve a dye in cold water and add a little acetic acid to make the color fast, then apply it all over the carpet with a brush. Let dry for about a week, then give it another coat. Both coats should be thin so the paint will not soak through.

Faded Wiltons, velvets and Brussels carpet turned face down, then cleaned, painted (on wrong side) and varnished will look well and give long service.

A few drops of ammonia added to the water when washing pantry shelves will help to keep ants away, and a few drops sprinkled in the cupboard will keep moths away.

SERVE OVER ICE CREAM Buttered Sauce. (Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

One cup brown sugar, one good teaspoon butter, two tablespoons milk. Cook until it threads and pour over ice cream or use for pudding sauce.

THE ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is Christ Jesus our Lord.—Romans viii, 38-39.

Diet and Health

BY LILLIAN PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Slimmy Showbones and Fannie Fattenup.

"Dear Doctor: As there any help for me? My family history: My name is Slimmy Showbones, and I married Fannie Fattenup, who, when a bride, was known as Really Ritzies. I am some past 50 years, in fairly good health, but 35 pounds underweight, and Fannie thinks more meat on my bones would better become my style of beauty. Now, if I've lived to this age with a handicap of 35 pounds underweight, guess there is nothing to worry about, except Fannie's opinion. (And she's reducing. Been on a diet for six months and lost 22 ounces.)"

"As to sugar for one of my condition and habits, should the equivalent of a tablespoonful of cane sugar, three times a day, be about right? Would only one tablespoonful of sugar a day be enough for me? And would it be all right for me to substitute about two dozen peanuts for two eggs or its equivalent in meat (peanuts giving fat and protein)?"

"Now, I understand that you get seven million letters a day and answer only six million. If I am about to pass out, please send me an S. O. S."

Your method of mentally doing out your sugar to the amount of one tablespoonful a day, and your peanuts to two dozen, is very significant. I'll wager that Fannie doesn't think of sugar and peanuts in those quantities!

Statistics have proven that persons after 40, for the average, who are slightly underweight, have better health and a longer life expectancy; but 35 pounds underweight would be too much. You might gain 20 pounds or so, Mr. S.

The same foundation diet that I give to the reducers should be used by those who wish to gain. Only a small lift—a considerably whole milk or half milk and cream, should be taken instead of skim or buttermilk. Peanuts register 100 calories to the half ounce of the meats (approximately 12 whole peanut meats), 20 of which are protein calories. One egg, 75 calories, has 27 calories of protein, and if you eat two eggs a day (150 C., of which 54 are protein calories) and want to substitute peanuts for that, you'll have to have about 250 calories of peanuts (30 peanut meats instead of 12). The protein of nuts is very high grade, and for animals it has been shown to be biologically complete; that is, the protein contains all the building elements. So you can substitute nuts for meat or eggs if you like. (You need approximately 250 to 350 C. of protein daily, so you will have to get more protein from other sources.)

Nuts are one of the best gaining foods, for the half ounce of the meats is 100 C. You can profitably add 200 to 300 C. a day of nuts or nut butters in your diet. Not long ago we ran a letter in the column from a reader who gained many wanted pounds by eating considerable peanut butter every day, extra. Egg yolks and cream are also great gaining foods.

You eat most candy, also, for that is very easily assimilated and is very high in calories, and a quick energy food. Be careful not to increase your free fats and oils too much, for they might upset you.

It is much better to have five or six small meals a day than to try to eat too much in one meal. Gradually work up to 1,000 or 1,500 C. a day more than you have been eating, and I will guarantee that your wife will be satisfied. Tell her she isn't cutting out 1,000 calories a day or she would have lost more than 22 ounces in six months. (But that is certainly better for her than gaining.) I can give you more succinct advice: You eat as Fannie does or used to before she began to diet. Also, send for the reducing and gaining pamphlet.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn, accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope must be enclosed. Address: Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Have you ever noticed in spring how nature tries to make everything beautiful—everything? Humans are so careless.

The chop o' dawn, "improve" the town—which usually means making it hideous—and throw rubbish in ravines and other picturesque places until they are unsightly.

Dear Mother Nature, on the other hand, is always trying to cover the ugliness with lovely greens and flowers. A vacant lot on which people have dumped cans and all sorts of rubbish, if left to itself for a little while, will have all the sordid mess covered with delicate greenery and flowers—bonnie, bountiful, goldenrod, wild nasturt and carrot—lovely wild things that make homelike blooms look somewhat pale and anemic. A man was telling me the other day that he found trailing arbutus sheltered under old tin cans and other rubbish.

There's probably a mortal lurking in all this, but if so, I trust you to find and apply it.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm in love with two boys. One I have known for a year and a half. I have known the other also for this length of time, but only became friendly with him recently. They both wish to work to and from school with me but my old friend objects. I don't see why we can't all be friends and walk home together. Please help me cut, for I love them both and it is hard to decide."

"PERPLEXED." You might give them each a turn, one one day and the other the other, but I suppose your first boy friend would not like that, either. If you have to choose, better decide on the one who has the nicest friends, unless you can influence the other to change his.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl in my early teens and have been going with a boy three years older. I like him very much but my mother will not let me go with him, and I slip out when I can. Please tell me what I can do."

"BLUE EYES." Mother's judgment is usually pretty good, Blue Eyes. Suppose you try to see this friend through her eyes. She wants only your happiness, you know.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

WITH THE WIND AS HIS FRIEND

"Well, you have had a day of it!" Peter looked sympathetically at Duck, who gave a deep sigh and nodded his head.

"I'll say so!" declared he. The boy stared at the bird in surprise. "Where did you pick up that expression?" asked he. "I declare one never knows what to next expect from you birds! Now who would ever guess that the feathered folk used slang! I thought only we Two-Legs did that."

"Pooh!" cried Duck and puffed out his chest. "I believe my people can do just as many things as can yours—more if you ask me—and as I told you once before, boy, you think too much! What good does it do to think, anyhow? Only makes your head ache as far as I can see. I said what I thought. I always do. What fault have you to find with that?"

"None at all," replied the boy, hastily, thinking for the hundredth time that these birds were always getting their toes stepped upon. "What are you going to do now?"

"Oh, nothing much—just try to keep warm while we are hanging around here waiting for those friends of mine to come from the North."

"Why you have missed them, old fellow! Those friends of yours came and went long before I heard you crying for help from Mr. Muskrat's doorway."

"At the box words Duck gave a startled quack."

"Tender roots and skin skins!" screamed he. "Why didn't you tell me so before? Do you suppose I would have spent all these precious moments talking to you if I had known that? Not but what I appreciate what you have done for me, of course, Duck added hastily, fearing he had made the boy feel badly, "but with every word I have been saying those birds have been taking strokes that have carried them farther and farther away from me."

"Just think of the long, weary way I shall have to travel all by myself! And that storm drawing nearer every minute! The wind is my best friend now. Luckily for me it is blowing my way. I couldn't bear to face it tonight."

"I shall never forget you, boy. When I come back this way next spring—if ever I do come back—I shall look out for you, and perhaps, if you want me to, I will make a 'stop-over,' so we can have some good times together. Goodbye! Wish me luck, won't you, for I certainly need it after the bad start I made!"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE SHEPHERD SAVES—For thus saith the Lord God; As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered. Ezekiel 34:11, 12.

BUSINESS AND POLITICAL SURPRISES

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, it is said, will shortly return to business. This presumably means that he will quit active politics. Southern Democrats particularly will be cheered by this prospect. The selection of the chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors corporation to manage his campaign was understood at the time to have been personal with Governor Smith. That it was a political mistake soon became apparent. The result of the selection was to further alienate those factions in the Democratic party unfriendly to its candidate and deepen their prejudices. Chairman Raskob's resignation, which has been widely demanded by these factions, would conceivably do something to hasten the reformation of the Democratic front.

A political manager, Chairman Raskob revealed no such genius as he displayed in Wall street. As a matter of fact he was a flop. The campaign he directed cost the Democratic party more than $7,000,000 and ended in both the defeat and disruption of that party. The application of "business methods" to politics left the Democratic national committee $1,500,000 in the hole. Although Governor Smith has appealed to the members of the party to make good this amount and has offered to throw in the profits from the publication of his collected campaign speeches, there has been no rush to pay for the horse that died at the polls last November. Considerably less than one-tenth of the deficit has been raised to date.

Chairman Raskob will go back to business a wiser man. At least he must have learned that politics and business, as they are played in this country, are two very different games. Occasionally a Mark Hanna appears, who has a genius for both; but the number of politicians who have failed in business added to the number of successful business men who have failed to illuminate politics by their brilliance, afford abundant evidence that the two things are not easily mixed. The harboiled politician, who has grown gray in the harness, can still outwit the average bright young man who breezes into the game as a temporary diversion.

THE REATER GENIUS

The remains of Marshal Foch rest near those of Napoleon Bonaparte. If, in the association, there is honor for the memory of either man, it is that of the Corsican which acquires lustre. Bonaparte may have been the greater military genius of the two, though comparison is difficult, if not quite impossible, because of the diversity of the conditions under which the men worked. But Foch performed the task which fell to him as skillfully, as completely, and as successfully as it is conceivable any man could possibly have performed it. And whereas the emperor exploited and all but ruined France and Europe; Foch served and saved both. Civilization would have been better off without Bonaparte; it might have been in a very sad way today but for Foch.

The missions to the savages in foreign lands may be prospering, but those to the savages in this country seem to be having a hard time.

Your BROADWAY And Mine

By Walter Winchell

NEW YORK — Will Rogers was discussing the new traffic regulations in the Broadway Belt.

"I don't think much of them," he grunted. "I have a better plan. Traffic congestion would be relieved if all cars going east would go on Mondays, and all going west would go on Tuesdays."

"Well," said a listener, "how about north and south?"

"There ain't no north and south," reminded Rogers. "We're all one!"

BEAUTIFUL LADIES
Never for me to determine.
Beyond their proud, flowery mien;

Beyond that they bud in Erin's
And blossom in Languishe's.

Dancing at Ciro's may bore them.
Life be a pretty drab bed;
All I can do is adore them.
All I can say I have said.

Year after gray year elapses
The facts of knowledge and hacks;
All but the beautiful faces,
All but the fleeting look.

Au revoir beautiful ladies!
Farewell to figure and face.
May life keep all of you charming.
And Death let you grace.

THE SQUELCH ADEQUATE

The expression "Don't be a stage!" in the show business, you probably know, means "Don't be a high hat!" Mr. Pihodna of the Herald Tribune, however, crushed a Troy whoopee maker in a night club this week. "Don't be so up-state!"

HANS ACROSS THE SEA
The papers recently recorded the trying experience of Elsie Janis in Paris, where she was actually heckled from the stage for some reason or other. Herb Williams, whose comedy has some audiences into laugh spasms all over the world, went through the same form of razberry when he recently played in Germany.

It appears that the German players went on strike when they discovered that Williams was getting more money than any German actor rated. So they evened matters by coming to the theatre by the thousands and whistling throughout his act. He had to leave the stage.

INCIDENTALLY

At the Columbia here on a Sunday, once, George Rosenor's act was rudely interrupted by a galleryite who made a laugh provoking noise with his mouth. Rosenor stopped his routine and urged the galleryite to look at the face of the man who heckled him. Everybody turned to look at the lad. Then Rosenor yelled: "The face, folks, will give you a rough idea why we have birth control!"

COST OF CRIME

The total revenue of government in the United States—federal, state and local—is said to be about eleven billions of dollars a year. Eleven billions is approximately the amount Uncle Sam loaned European countries during and after the war. And it is interesting to learn that statisticians figure crime, in one way and another, costs this country about eleven billions. Think of the government employees—federal, state and local—and the manifold institutions in every county in America that are made necessary by the tendency to criminal activity on the part of the human being.

CONTROL

An old proverb says that "love is without prudence and anger without control." The most dangerous tendency in humans is the tendency to surrender themselves to the dominance of their instincts and impulses and emotions. It is the business of the really civilized man to control his emotions—not be controlled by them. Right at that point lies the line of difference between man and the lower animals from which some say he has sprung.

APOLOGIES

Some folks refuse to make an apology when they have merely been misunderstood, although they have hurt somebody else very much. They think they are absolved because their intentions were right, although they did not make themselves clear. The fact is they are guilty and owe an apology just the same. Just because one cannot make himself clear does not excuse him for hurting another.

POLICY

Policy is a very important word. One thing we ought to get as early in life as we have intelligence to devise it—and that is a policy. We ought to lay out for ourselves a definite course of action. There will always be deviations and exceptions. We shall doubtless fall short of our expectations. We must accept such failures and not be too disheartened by them. We should not change our policy unless we have sound reasons and much evidence for doing it.

CONTINUATION OF ROTATING ARMY OFFICES ANNOUNCED

By JAMES W. GOOD Secretary of War

(James William Good was born at Cedar Rapids, Ia. Sept. 24, 1866. He is a graduate of Coe college, later obtaining an L. B. degree at the University of Michigan. From 1906 to 1908 he was city attorney of Cedar Rapids. He was elected to congress in the following year from the fifth Iowa district, serving until 1923. For two terms he was chairman of the committee on appropriations. He then resumed his law practice at Chicago until recently, when he was appointed secretary of war by President Hoover. His home is now in Evanston, Ill.)

The question of reappointment of bureau chiefs and their assistants has been under consideration by me for a considerable period.

Under the national defense act officers commissioned in the non-combatant branches are not eligible for selection as combatant general officers of the line of the army. In order that more officers of these branches may have the prospect of becoming generals during their service it would appear desirable and in the interest of these departments that appointments as chiefs of these branches be not made permanent in character.

For the above reason it is desirable to establish a general principle of rotation in the branches for the benefit of the service in general and in order to provide greater opportunity to all.

While there may be occasions when the best interest of the service may necessitate exceptions, I have adopted a general policy of rotation concerning appointment of chiefs and assistant chiefs of bureaus as I believe that the application of this general principle is in accordance with the intent of congress and for the good of the service as a whole.

I desire to emphasize the fact that it is our policy to maintain in time of peace only a skeletonized army, and that it is therefore of the utmost importance that the chiefs of branches should be highly efficient at all times to meet any emergency that might arise. I think that this might be assured by rotation in office that would bring periodically to the highest position in branches, men who recently have had intimate contact with troops and field service, and who will, in consequence, bring fresh and enthusiastic, progressive ideas and recent varied experience to their task vitalizing the whole military establishment.

The policy announced by my predecessor appears to be sound and in the interests of good administration. It will be followed in the future.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

SHESTNUT, BROWN AND BLACK

The darker-haired women of the world have a fortunate gift in common—their hair is usually thicker and stronger than that of their blonde-haired sisters.

But dark hair—like blonde—requires painstaking care to keep it soft, shining and healthy. Where blondes are inclined to "fuss" with their hair to keep it light in color and fluffy, the brunette is more inclined to neglect hers. For this reason dark hair is less likely to be noticed for its color and beauty than the blonde.

Too often we hear a brunette's hair spoken of merely as "dark." In reality, there are numerous shades of dark hair, ranging from the warm chestnut through the medium brown tones to dark brown and black. Each shade has its own lovely lights and tints, which proper care will bring out and emphasize.

Hot oil shampoos may be used by the brunette to good advantage, especially if her scalp is inclined to be dry and her hair brittle, with a tendency to split at the ends. Even for oily scalps the hot oil shampoo is often recommended, since some oily conditions indicate, at a well-nourished scalp, but a tax state of activity in the oil glands. Treatment with hot oil will feed the scalp and ward off the fading and graying that comes to dark hair oftentimes early in life.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Senators Morris Sheppard of Texas and Wesley L. Jones of Washington agree that crime is too prevalent. Thus agreeing, they agree also in commenting President Hoover's commission plan, to decide on the best means of strengthening law enforcement.

Wets practically are a unit in attributing the so-called "crime-wave" mainly to prohibition.

As authors, respectively, of the recently adopted "five-and-ten act," stiffening the minimum penalty even for first violations of Volsteadism, Senators Sheppard and Jones, perhaps, are the two best qualified members of congress to dispute this anti-dry contention—which both do, vigorously.

"Indeed," says Senator Sheppard, "the crime situation probably would be worse than it is today, but for prohibition."

At first the Texan questioned whether crime really has increased as much as has been represented—although, even so, he expressed approval of the Hoover investigation—since "there is no reason why we should not desire still better conditions," as he expressed it.

And why more crimes of violence? "That," replied the Texan senator, "is precisely what we need an investigation to determine—that, and all other problems involved in the situation."

"For one thing, we obviously need more courts."

"There is no fault to be found with those we have already, but we have not enough of them."

not intended—as specifically stated."

Senator Jones readily admits that crime has increased.

"Besides, we are hampered by legal technicalities."

"While I am a friend of our constitution, it may be that one of our difficulties lies in the fact that our constitution is written."

England's is not. There is no getting back of court proceedings. Here an appeal is so easy."

Senator Jones was sponsor, at a recent session of congress, of a proposal to limit the right of appeal, in certain cases, strictly to grounds of law, leaving the verdict of juries unassailable.

MENU HINT

Spanish Steak Browned Potatoes
Lettuce and Watercress
Halved Grape Fruits Coffee

The dinner menu is fairly heavy, so I have given you a light fruit dessert. The grape fruit may either be served in the shells as suggested, simply halved and the pulp loosened and sweetened to taste, or it may be taken out of the shell and served with orange sections in sherbet cups. Bananas may also be added.

Today's Recipes.

Spanish Steak—Have one and one-half pounds round steak cut one inch thick. Dust with salt, pepper and flour. Fry until brown on both sides in a little fat. Add one sliced onion, one green pepper, and one large tomato, fresh or canned. Continue frying until vegetables are partially cooked. Cover with boiling water and allow to simmer about two hours until tender. Thicken gravy and serve.

SUGGESTIONS

Paint the Rug.
If you have a carpet or rug that is badly faded why not give it a new color?

Either use a very thin paint or dissolve a dye in cold water and add a little acetic acid to make the color fast, then apply it all over the carpet with a brush. Let dry for about a week, then give it another coat. Both coats should be thin so the paint will not soak through.

Faded Wiltons, velvets and Brussels carpet turned face down, then cleaned, painted (on wrong side) and varnished will look well and give long service.

A few drops of ammonia added to the water when washing pantry shelves will help to keep ants away, and a few drops sprinkled in the cupboard will keep moths away.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Slimmy Showbones and Fannie Fattenup.

"Dear Doctor: Is there any help for me? My family history: My name is Slimmy Showbones, and I married Fannie Fattenup, who, as a bride, was known as Really Ritesize. I am some past 50 years, in fairly good health, but 35 pounds underweight, and Fannie thinks more meat on my bones would better become my style of beauty. Now, if I've lived to this age with a handicap of 35 pounds underweight, guess there is nothing to worry about, except Fannie's opinion. (And she's reducing. Been on a diet for six months and lost 22 ounces.)"

"As to sugar for one of my condition and habits, should the equivalent of a tablespoonful of cane sugar, three times a day, be about right? Would only one tablespoonful of sugar a day be enough for me? And would it be all right for me to substitute about two dozen peanuts for two eggs or its equivalent in meat (peanuts giving fat and protein)?"

"Now, I understand that you get seven million letters a day and answer only six million. If I am about to pass out, please send me an S. O. S."

Your method of mentally doling out your sugar to the amount of one tablespoonful a day, and your peanuts to two dozen, is very significant. I'll wager that Fannie doesn't think of sugar and peanuts in those quantities!

Statistics have proven that persons after 40, for the average, who are slightly underweight, have better health and a longer life expectancy; but 35 pounds underweight would be too much. You might gain 20 pounds or so, Mr. S.

The same foundation diet that I give to the reducers should be used by those who wish to gain, only amplified considerably. Whole milk or half milk and cream, should be taken instead of skim or buttermilk. Peanuts register 100 calories to the half ounce of the meats (approximately 12 whole peanut meats), 20 of which are protein calories. One egg, 75 calories, has 27 calories of protein, and if you eat two eggs a day (150 C., of which 54 are protein calories), and want to substitute peanuts for fat, you'll have to have about 250 calories of peanuts (30 peanut meats instead of 12). The protein of nuts is very high grade, and for animals it has been shown to be biologically complete; that is, the protein contains all the building elements. So you can substitute nuts for meat or eggs if you like. (You need approximately 250 to 350 C. of protein daily, so you will have to get more protein from other sources.)

Nuts are one of the best gaining foods, for one-half ounce of the meats is 100 C. You can profitably add 200 to 300 C. a day of nuts or nut butters in your diet. Not long ago we ran a letter in the column from a reader who gained many wanted pounds by eating considerable peanut butter every day. Extra. Eggs, yolk and cream are also great gaining foods.

You eat more candy, also, for that is very easily assimilated and is very high in calories, and a quick energy food. Be careful not to increase your free fats and oils too much, for they might upset you.

It is much better to have five or six small meals a day than to try to eat too much in one meal. Gradually work up to 1,000 or 1,500 C. a day more than you have been eating, and I will guarantee that your wife will be satisfied. Tell her that she isn't cutting out 1,000 calories a day or she would have lost more than 22 ounces in six months. (But she is certainly better for her than gaining.) I can give you more succinct advice: You eat as Fannie does or used to before she began to diet. Also, send for the reducing and gaining pamphlet.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Have you ever noticed in spring how nature tries to make everything beautiful—everything? Humans are so careless. They chop down trees, "improve" the town—which usually means making it hideous—and throw rubbish in ravines and other picturesque places until they are unsightly.

Dear Mother Nature, on the other hand, is always trying to cover the ugliness with lovely greens and flowers. A vacant lot on which people have dumped cans and all sorts of rubbish, if left to itself for a little while, will have all the sordid mess covered with delicate greenery and flowers—bouncing betties, gold-enrod, wild mustard and carrot—lovely wild things that make housewife blooms look somewhat pale and anemic. A man was telling me the other day that he found trailing arbutus sheltered under old tin cans and other rubbish.

There's probably a mortal lurking in all this, but if so, I trust you to find and apply it.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I'm in love with two boys. One I have known for a year and a half. I have known the other also for this length of time, but only became friendly with him recently. They both wish to walk to and from school with me, but my old friend objects. I don't see why we can't all be friends and walk home together. Please help me out, for I love them both and it is hard to decide."

"PERPLEXED."

You might give them each a turn, one day and the other the other, but I suppose your first boy friend would not like that, either. If you have to choose, better decide on the one who has the nicest friends, unless you can influence the other to change his.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a boy in my early teens. I have two boy friends about my own age who are down to my house a great part of their time. Around where I live there are three pretty girls, one of them is my sister. The others are her best friends. They used to come down to the house very often and I used to see them a lot. We all did a bit of harmless petting which didn't amount to much. They have stopped coming to the house altogether and are getting unfriendly to me. I have tried to win their friendship again through all sorts of methods. Can you please tell me how to win it back?"

"PUZZLED IVANHOE."

It seems to me I see the girls' mothers frowning at them. The girls must have "let the cat out of the bag," about the "petting," and the mother have decided that you are an "undesirable" friend for the daughters. Suppose you "cut out" the mushy stuff and treat the girls as pals and see if you cannot win them back.

"MY DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl in my early teens and have been going with a boy three years older. I like him very much but my mother will not let me go with him, and I slip out when I can. Please tell me what I can do."

"BLUE EYES."

Mother's judgment is usually pretty good, Blue Eyes. Suppose you try to see this friend through her eyes. She wants only your happiness, you know.

Peter's Adventures

WITH THE WIND AS HIS FRIEND

"Well, you have had a day of it," Peter looked sympathetically at Duck, who gave a deep sigh and nodded.

"I'll say so," declared he. The boy stared at the bird in surprise. "Where did you pick up that expression?" asked he. "I declare one never knows what to expect from you birds! Now who would ever guess that the feathered folk used slang! I thought only we Two-Legs did that."

"Pooh!" cried Duck and puffed out his chest. "I believe my people can do just as many things as can you—more if you ask me—and as I told you once before, boy, you think too much! What good does it do to think, anyhow? Only makes your head ache as far as I can see. I said what I thought. I always do. What fault have you to find with that?"

"Oh, nothing much—just try to keep warm while I hang around here waiting for those friends of mine to come from the North."

"Why have you missed them, old fellow? Those friends of yours came and went long before I heard you crying for help from Mr. Muskrat's doorway."

"At the boy's words Duck gave a startled quack.

"Tender roots and snail skins!" screeched he. "Why didn't you tell me so before? Do you suppose I would have spent all these precious moments talking to you if I had known that? Not but what I appreciate what you have done for me, of course," Duck added hastily, fearing he had hurt the bird's feelings. "But with every word I have been saying those birds have carried their strokes that have carried them farther and farther away from me."

"Just think of the long, weary way I shall have to travel all by myself! And that storm drawing nearer every minute! The wind is my best friend now. Luckily for me it is blowing my way. I couldn't bear to face it tonight."

"I shall never forget you, boy. When I come back this way next spring—if ever I do come back—I shall look out for you, and perhaps, if you want me, I will make a 'stop-over,' so we can have some good times together. Goodbye! Wish you luck, won't you, for I certainly need it after the bad start I made!"

FRAMED

Xenia fans should be particularly pleased with the announcement of the signing of a two-year contract whereby Xenia Central and Dayton Stivers, state champions for the last two years, will continue athletic relations in basketball for at least the next two years.

By terms of the agreement, Xenia will meet Stivers at Dayton in 1930 and Stivers will appear in Xenia the following year. Both games will be played the last week in February shortly before the regional state tournament opens. Stivers will have another cracking good team next season. Led by Captain-elect Bil Hosket, six-foot, four-inch pivot man, who has been all-state center for two straight years, the Orange Crusader should have another team of state championship caliber. Hosket will probably be bigger and better than ever next year when he will be a senior. He is the only regular back however.

Xenia Central should also have another fine team as Smittle, guard for two seasons; Bell, flashy forward, and Hurley, center, will again be available.

National high school basketball tournaments are now virtually regarded as things of the past. The championship tournament of Coach A. A. Staggs at the University of Chicago, now in progress, will probably be the last major convocation of youthful basketballers because of the disapproval of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, which recently attacked the congress of boy athletes as an injury to their scholastic standing and their health.

No order was issued forbidding the national eliminations, but the federation did vote almost unanimously to discourage them. All but the Utah and the South Dakota representatives supported the resolution, and they voted against it in protest because it did not include track meets as well as basketball.

Chicago annually sees the two largest high school basketball championships. Coach Staggs' assembly includes teams from every part of the country, drawn from high schools of all classes, and Loyola University about the same time stages the annual tourney of Catholic prep schools.

Coach Staggs recently made a statement in which "the old man" said he would make no further attempt to hold the tourneys in the face of official opposition.

Neglected classes and the ill effects of the strain of competition were given as the reasons for opposing the competitions by the federation, which pointed out the time lost from classes in the long trips and the hard campaign in which the youthful contestants' play at top speed through several days in surviving the eliminations.

Seventeen games rolled Thursday in the headpin bowling tournament being sponsored by The Bryant Motor Sales Co. at the Recreation Parlor resulted in no changes in the standing of the four leaders.

Hollis Peterson, in third place, and McGee, in fourth place, strengthened their position, however, Peterson turned in a score of 111, exceeding his previous game by one pin. McGee, who was in fourth place with 108, rolled a score of 110, and is still in fourth position.

SCHOOLS ENTER TWO YEAR CONTRACT FOR BASKETBALL GAMES

Home And Home Tilts
Will Be Played In 1930 And '31

Xenia Central High and Dayton Stivers have entered into a two-year basketball agreement, according to an announcement Friday by E. G. Whitworth, faculty manager of the local school.

Under terms of the contract which was received this week, the "Buccaneers" will play Stivers at Dayton February 22, 1930, and the Orange Crusader will appear at Xenia for a game February 21, 1931.

Dayton Stivers has won the state basketball championship for the last two years.

Last season the Bucs met Stivers twice in basketball, once in a regularly scheduled game at Dayton and later the same week in the regional state tournament at Springfield.

Immediately after the first Xenia-Stivers contest Faculty Manager Whitworth opened negotiations with the Dayton school for a two-year contract for home-and-home games between the two schools.

Xenia made such a good showing against the champion Orange quintet in the game at the Montgomery Fairground coliseum that Stivers welcomed the continuance of athletic relations between the two schools.

The contract, however, does not mean that the two schools will also meet in football.

The Xenia Central faculty manager is working on the 1929-30 basketball schedule for the Bucs and hopes to arrange an attractive program of games.

It is hoped to arrange seven or eight home games as was the case last season. Five home games have already been booked, including three Miami Valley League contests with Troy, Greenville, and Piqua. The complete schedule is expected to be announced soon.

BOYS WAGE BATTLE ON DANDELIONS

More than 100 seventh and eighth grade boys at Central High School, armed with knives as weapons, opened a vigorous campaign of extermination Thursday afternoon on dandelions which desecrate the front lawn of the school.

After a battle lasting half an hour, tired but flushed with partial victory, they retired from the conflict with the drive against the enemy only one-third completed.

The casualties included fifteen bushels of dandelions. Superintendent Louis Hamerle predicted that at least two more concerted attacks against the weeds will be necessary before the task is over as there still remain an abundance of dandelions to make the lawn unsightly.

The boys waged their offensive against the dandelions the last half hour of school, their classes having been shortened that afternoon.

DOG RACING TRACK WILL BE OPENED AT FAIRFIELD

Plans for construction of a dog racing track on a newly-acquired site within the village of Fairfield in Bath Twp., representing an investment of approximately $100,000, were disclosed Friday by Attorney Frank L. Johnson, this city.

Attorney Johnson represents a company formed in Dayton which will be known as the Fairfield Amusement Park, Ltd., not a corporation, composed of sportsmen of Dayton, Springfield, Osborn and other nearby cities interested in dog racing, who will finance the project.

The plant will be built on thirty-one acres of land, located northeast of Fairfield and within the corporate limits of the village, purchased Thursday from the Miami Conservancy District, Attorney Johnson said.

Announcement was also made that the Fairfield village council has passed two ordinances authorizing Mayor Routzong to license the track and legalize the racing. The track will be circular and one-fourth of a mile in length.

It will be a turf track, an innovation which has never been tried in this country. The dogs will race on grass instead of a dirt track.

RESERVES TO OPEN WITH TWO PRACTICE GAMES THIS SEASON

Two Sunday practice games at which no admission will be charged are being arranged by the Xenia Reserve Baseball Club in preparation for the formal opening of the local diamond season scheduled for Sunday, April 21.

Reserves will play an exhibition game with the Grismer Fuchs of Dayton Sunday afternoon, April 7 at 2:30 o'clock at Washington Park. Xenia fans may attend this game free of charge as well as another practice tilt which Manager Jesse Chambliss hopes to arrange with the Shroyer Cubs of Dayton the following Sunday.

The season will be formally ushered in April 21 but the opponents for the mainline have not been selected. It is emphasized, however, that a strong visiting team will be brought here.

Men are at present engaged in working on the diamond and park in order to get it in readiness for the season. There is also some talk of a special ceremony in connection with the inaugural contest.

The Reserve nine, which will again be managed by Jesse Chambliss, will be financed and otherwise backed by J. C. Greene and William H. Greene, members of Greene Brothers, which own The Chicken House at 524 W. Second St.

The price of admission to the Sunday games will be 50 cents instead of 35 cents but by means of the slight increase it is hoped to make possible the booking of stronger teams and generally improve the caliber of the local team.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Xenia fans should be particularly pleased with the announcement of the signing of a two-year contract whereby Xenia Central and Dayton Stivers, state champions for the last two years, will continue athletic relations in basketball for at least the next two years.

By terms of the agreement, Xenia will meet Stivers at Dayton in 1930 and Stivers will appear in Xenia the following year. Both games will be played the last week in February shortly before the regional state tournament opens.

Stivers will have another crackling good team next season. Led by Captain-elect Bill Hosket, six-foot, four-inch pivot man, who has been all-state center for two straight years, the Orange Crusader should have another team of state championship caliber. Hosket will probably be bigger and better than ever next year when he will be a senior. He is the only regular back, however.

Xenia Central should also have another fine team as Smith, guard for two seasons; Bell, flashy forward, and Hurley, center, will again be available.

National high school basketball tournaments are now virtually regarded as things of the past. The championship tournament of Coach A. A. Staggs at the University of Chicago, now in progress, will probably be the last major conclave of youthful basketball because of the disapproval of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, which recently attacked the congress of boy athletes as an injury to their scholastic standing and their health.

No order was issued forbidding the national eliminations, but the federation did vote almost unanimously to discourage them. All but the Utah and the South Dakota representatives supported the resolution, and they voted against it in protest because it did not include track meets as well as basketball.

Chicago annually sees the two largest high school basketball championships. Coach Staggs' assembly includes teams from every part of the country, drawn from high schools of all classes, and Loyola University about the same time stages the annual tourney of Catholic prep schools.

Coach Staggs recently made a statement in which "the old man" said he would make no further attempt to hold the tourneys in the face of official opposition. Neglected classes and the ill effects of the strain of competition were given as the reasons for opposing the competitions by the federation, which pointed out the time lost from classes in the long trips and the hard campaign in which the youthful contestants play at top speed through several days in surviving the eliminations.

Bowling

The Lang Transfers pulled up into a tie with the Lang Chevrolet Co. for fourth place in the Recreation Bowling League by winning two out of three games from the latter team Thursday night. Highley turned in a series of 599 for the winners, while D. McCoy led the losers with 532. Box score:

HEADPIN STANDING REMAINS THE SAME

Seventeen games rolled Thursday in the headpin bowling tournament being sponsored by The Bryant Motor Sales Co. at the Recreation Parlor resulted in no changes in the standing of the four leaders.

Hollis Peterson, in third place, strengthened his position, however. Peterson turned in a score of 111, exceeding his previous game by one pin. McGee, who was in fourth place with 108, rolled a score of 110, and is still in fourth position.

GOOD ATTENDANCE RECORD PREVAILS

Of a total of 1,913 pupils enrolled in the Xenia public schools, 1,114, or 58 per cent, were neither absent nor tardy in the month of March, Superintendent Louis Hamerle discloses.

Percentage attendance for the schools was 94.6 as compared with 94.4 last March and 93.7 the preceding month.

The sixth grade home room of Mrs. Van Zant, with a mark of 98.4 had the highest percentage attendance.

SCHOOLS ENTER TWO YEAR CONTRACT FOR BASKETBALL GAMES

Home And Home Tilts
Will Be Played In 1930 And '31

Xenia Central High and Dayton Stivers have entered into a two-year basketball agreement, according to an announcement Friday by E. G. Whitworth, faculty manager of the local school.

Under terms of the contract which was received this week, the "Buccaneers" will play Stivers at Dayton February 22, 1930, and the Orange Crusader will appear at Xenia for a game February 21, 1931.

Dayton Stivers has won the state basketball championship for the last two years.

Last season the Bucs met Stivers twice in basketball, once in a regularly scheduled game at Dayton and later the same week in the regional state tournament at Springfield.

Immediately after the first Xenia-Stivers contest Faculty Manager Whitworth opened negotiations with the Dayton school for a two-year contract for home-and-home games between the two schools.

Xenia made such a good showing against the champion Orange Crusader in the game at the Montgomery Fairground coliseum that Stivers welcomed the continuance of athletic relations between the two schools.

The contract, however, does not mean that the two schools will also meet in football.

The Xenia Central faculty manager is working on the 1929-30 basketball schedule for the Bucs and hopes to arrange an attractive program of games.

It is hoped to arrange seven or eight home games as was the case last season. Five home games have already been booked, including three Miami Valley League contests with Troy, Greenville, and Piqua. The complete schedule is expected to be announced soon.

BOYS WAGE BATTLE ON DANDELIONS

More than 100 seventh and eighth grade boys at Central High School, armed with knives as weapons, opened a vicious campaign of extermination Thursday afternoon on dandelions which desecrate the front lawn of the school.

After a battle lasting half an hour, tired but flushed with partial victory, they retired from the conflict with the drive against the enemy only one-third completed.

The casualties included fifteen bushels of dandelions. Superintendent Louis Hamerle predicted that at least two more concerted attacks against the weeds will be necessary before the task is over as there still remain an abundance of dandelions to make the lawn unsightly.

The boys waged their offensive against the dandelions the last half hour of school, their classes having been shortened that afternoon.

Gang war broke out in Brook-Lang at peace conference of bootleggers and the battle ended with Patrolman D. J. Maloney, below, dead from the bullets from the gun of Sergeant C. McCarthy, top, who, although off duty, ran into the fray when the shooting began. Police said that Maloney acted as gun carrier for the gang.

DOG RACING TRACK WILL BE OPENED AT FAIRFIELD

Plans for construction of a dog racing track on a newly-acquired site within the village of Fairfield in Bath Twp., representing an investment of approximately $100,000, were disclosed Friday by Attorney Frank L. Johnson, this city.

Attorney Johnson represents a company formed in Dayton which will be known as the Fairfield Amusement Park, Ltd., not a corporation, composed of sportsmen of Dayton, Springfield, Osborn and other nearby cities interested in dog racing, who will finance the project.

The plant will be built on thirty-one acres of land, located northeast of Fairfield and within the corporate limits of the village, purchased Thursday from the Miami Conservancy District, Attorney Johnson said.

Announcement was also made that the Fairfield village council has passed two ordinances authorizing Mayor Routzong to license the track and legalize the racing. The track will be circular and one-fourth of a mile in length.

It will be a turf track, an innovation which has never been tried out in this country. The dogs will race on grass instead of a dirt track.

RESERVES TO OPEN WITH TWO PRACTICE GAMES THIS SEASON

Two Sunday practice games at which no admission will be charged are being arranged by the Xenia Reserve Baseball Club in preparation for the formal opening of the local diamond season scheduled for Sunday, April 21.

Reserves will play an exhibition game with the Grismer Fuels of Dayton Sunday afternoon, April 7 at 2:30 o'clock at Washington Park. Xenia fans may attend this game free of charge as well as another practice tilt which Manager Jesse Chambliss hopes to arrange with the Shroyer Cubs of Dayton the following Sunday.

The season will be formally ushered in April 21 but the opponents for the matinee have not been selected. It is emphasized, however, that a strong visiting team will be brought here.

Men are at present engaged in working on the diamond and park in order to get it in readiness for the season. There is also some talk of a special ceremony in connection with the inaugural contest.

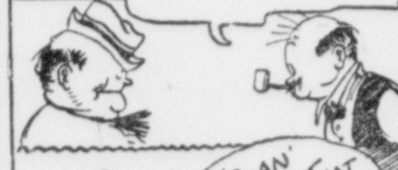

The Reserve nine, which will again be managed by Jesse Chambliss, will be financed by J. C. Greene and William H. Greene, members of Greene Brothers, which own The Chicken House at 524 W. Second St.

The price of admission to the Sunday games will be 50 cents instead of 35 cents but by means of the slight increase it is hoped to make possible the booking of stronger teams and generally improve the caliber of the local team.

XENIAN SUES AS ACCIDENT SEQUEL

William Ertel, 19, Xenia, has brought suit in Warren County Common Pleas Court against Warren County Board of Commissioners demanding $30,000 damages as a result of injuries sustained in an auto accident that wrecked the bridge spanning the north branch of Turtle Creek on North Broadway at Lebanon in August, 1927.

The action was filed by Ertel, who is a minor, through Mrs. Daisy Keiter, his next friend. Attorney Charles L. Darlington, this city, represents the youth.

It is charged in the petition that at the time the accident occurred the bridge was unsafe for traffic and that the county was guilty of negligence in failing to repair or replace the bridge with a modern structure.

ASSIGN PARTS FOR THREE GUILD PLAYS

"Jon", a tragedy, "Columbine in Business", a farce, and "Who's Money", a comedy, are to be the Xenia Little Theater Guild's next productions.

These three one-act plays comprise the third of a series of plays given by the Guild at the Opera House. The date for the performance has not been set but will probably be during the week of April 21.

The characters have all been assigned and people taking part are now working on their parts under the direction of Miss Esther Muriel Smith.

Operation Record

Although he is only 18 years of age, Ralph Snodgrass, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., has undergone 47 operations within the last six years as the result of a great toe infection. But one year behind his class, despite his continued absence from the school room, he plans to become a doctor.

RESISTOTWIST
A NEW WONDER FABRIC
Perfected by Americans

For years European woolen mills have tried to develop a cloth that would Stand The Rub. It took an American Mill, The Shackamaxon Mills, Philadelphia, to perfect a fabric that would stand thousands of hours and thousands of miles of rubbing.

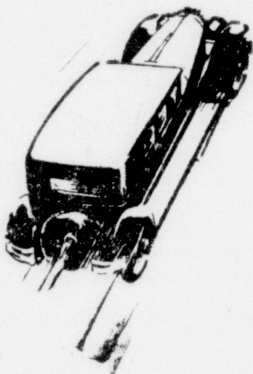

RESISTOTWIST resists the rub—it will not wear shiny or threadbare, except after extremely long and hard service. Offered in beautiful colorings—light and dark—tailored in Lord Rochester Styling.

WORSHIP MEETS A HUMAN NEED

Christopher Morley has written the following words that has an answer in church attendance, "When I go to the Prune Exchange Bank to retrieve my pass-book, I always think how helpful if there were somewhere to leave my mind to be written up—collections entered, debits and credits noted, soul balanced—and carried forward."

Thoughtful worship does exactly what is expressed as a vain hope in this verse. In worship the mind is "written up," the soul is balanced and carried forward. For that reason worship meets a universal and permanent human need.

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Hezekiah was a true worshipper of Jehovah, possibly led into this true faith by the prophet Micah. As soon as he came to the throne, he put the temple of Solomon in order, repairing and cleaning it, and reorganizing the services there, which had fallen into neglect. Our lesson finds him in the midst of this reformation.

V. 1. "And Hezekiah sent to Israel and all Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh that they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem, to keep the passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel." Israel and Judah had been separated two hundred years and had recently been at war with each other, Judah having suffered the defeat; the king believed that if a worship of God were revived, that wars would cease.

V. 2. "For the king had taken counsel, and his princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to keep the passover in the second month." The passover should have been rightly held in the first month of the year but they could not keep it because the priests had not sanctified themselves together to Jerusalem. Better worship late than never for worship is fundamental.

V. 6. "So the posts went with the letters from the king and the princes throughout all Israel and Judah and according to the commandment of the king, saying, ye children of Israel, turn again unto Jehovah the God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel, that he may return to the remnant that are escaped of you out of the land of the Assyria." The letters were carried through the land by swift runners, the primitive "posts." The children of Israel were the people of the northern kingdom, who Hezekiah wished to unite once more with Judah, not politically but spiritually. His message was "back to God."

V. 8. "Now be ye not stiff-necked, as your fathers were; but yield yourselves to Jehovah, and enter into his sanctuary, and serve Jehovah your God, that his fierce anger may be averted from you." The entire history of the northern kingdom is the story of obstinate persistence in sin; the only cure for sin is a complete yielding to God. The fact of sin must be presented if men guilty of being untrue and unfaithful to God are ever made penitent a very necessary condition of soul that seeks pardon of God.

V. 9. "For Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful and will not turn his face away from you, if ye return to him." The gods which the people in the northern kingdom had been worshipping were cruel; the true God is merciful and will so express himself when they return to him.

V. 26. "And so there was great joy in Jerusalem; for since the time of Solomon the son of David, king of Israel, there was not like this in Jerusalem." There is no joy like the delight of sincere religion. So great was the rejoicing that an encore of a week of praise and worship was added to the passover week.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson
1. How account for Hezekiah being such a good king, having had a wicked father as king before him?
2. What principle in this lesson may be deduced helpful in correcting wrongs in political government?
3. How proceed to have a revival of religion as taught in this lesson?
4. What made it difficult for Israel to accept the invitation extended by the king to worship at Jerusalem?
5. How is the non-church going habit formed and how may it be corrected?
6. In what respects is the League of Nations effecting a better understanding and a firmer relationship between nations?
William Jennings Bryan said, "Those who differ in their applications of religion to life can be brought together only by so intensifying faith in God and reverence for him as to dissolve their difference in a unity of purpose and of faith."

Home Education

Edgar Guest tells a story of two neighbors that illustrates what a good neighbor really means. It is of a successful business man of Philadelphia, who many years ago was on the brink of being a financial bankrupt; bankers would not increase his loans and his relatives and nearest friends were skeptical of giving him a lift. A neighbor, however, saw that he was dejected and looked as if he were in terrible trouble, "Something is wrong over there," he told his wife. "I wonder what it can be."

The next morning he walked over to the dejected man. "I've been thinking about you," he said, "Are you in trouble. Is there something I can do to help?" "I'll advance the money you need," said his neighbor quietly.

When asked why he responded in this way, he said, "I had seen that man day in and day out with his family. I knew his habits of life; I knew him to be a good man. When I saw him in trouble, I wanted to help him if I could."

That was the lift that saved the man from financial ruin—the lift of a good neighbor—D. Carl Yoder.

How may one become a good teacher of juniors? It is important that a teacher of juniors adapt his instruction to this age, remembering that in this age are found marvellous activity, an endless supply of energy, an irresistible love of fun and noise, the desire to know and a dawning independence. THE OLD-FASHIONED HOME
We have all heard something of the old fashioned home—the home that our fathers and mothers tell us about—the simple, plain dwelling place, whether in city or country, where our grandparents and the children lived together the greatest part of the time.

There is much to be said for that old home life. It held the family together in a close bond of interest, love and fellowship. Parents had a chance to hand over their stock of ideas—educational, political and religious to the children; they had their time to instruct them in their ways of life and meeting the problems that would confront them. The parents of the old fashioned home could shield their children, for the most part, from the destructive influences of the outside world.

There were also disadvantages; the old fashioned home kept from the children much useful information and many broadening experiences; too often life work and life companions were forced upon the children; some times authority becomes autocratic and really becomes a bar to progress, since it takes away from youth its initiative.

If the best of the old fashioned homes could be kept in our present homes, we might have more ideal conditions.

1. How may one become a good teacher of juniors?

It is important that a teacher of juniors adapt his instruction to this age, remembering that in this age are found marvellous activity, an endless supply of energy, an irresistible love of fun and noise, the desire to know and a dawning independence. If there is a failure of interest, first seek the cause in yourself; only as far as he feels sympathy in his teacher, can he be influenced.

The junior feels that he is no longer a child and therefore strongly resents anything suggesting of being patronized, such as certain forced intimacies of manner and those youthful expressions which many well meaning teachers mistaking for winsomeness and sympathy with childhood. A straightforward, natural frank manner that implies equality and friendly interest, is more calculated to win the young person's confidence, just as a religion that emphasizes manliness and womanliness is bound to appeal to him.

In the same way things which are hard to do and call forth great effort, are very much more of a challenge to him than those which lie within his power of achievement. His outlook is all toward the future and the man he will soon be and we must think of him in this way more than as a mere child.

A good leader of juniors must be a strict disciplinarian, as a child of this age has little respect for anyone of whom he can take advantage. As much freedom as possible should be given—directing activities rather than repressing them. A teacher may be clever, resourceful and popular with the class and yet not have nearly the influence he might if he met them during the week and joined them in some favorite sport. A good teacher of juniors realizes that this is the greatest opportunity for fellowship and real friendship between him and his class and also that the rapidly developing social instincts of the boy demand this sort of companionship.

TESTED METHODS OF TEACHERS OF JUNIORS.

Joseph P. Grace and Joseph J. Larkin both of New York, both distinguished Catholic Americans, were recently named by His Holiness Pope Pius to be Knights and members of the American Chapter of Malta.

The Bible is still the world's best seller. More than 30,000,000 copies are circulated every year and it has been translated into more than 800 languages and dialects. It was recently reported that 955,671 copies of the Bible were distributed in the city and harbor of New York during 1928.

The largest gift ever made to Methodist education has been received by the College of Liberal Arts, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. This gift was received from Milton H. Wilson, a trustee of the university, who died last month, leaving eight million dollars to the institution.

The twenty-ninth annual Congress of the Disciples of the United States will be held this year at St. Louis April 16-19.

A national interdenominational home missions congress is to be held in Washington, D. C., in December, 1930. The Home Missions Council with the co-operation of the federal council of churches and the council of women for home missions are sponsoring this conference. The purpose of this conference is to make a critical and constructive study of the home missionary need, the responsibilities and methods of approach under modern conditions and to work out more statesmanlike policies and plans of organization for the winning of America to Christ.

Home Education

Edgar Guest tells a story of two neighbors that illustrates what a good neighbor really means. It is of a successful business man of Philadelphia, who many years ago was on the brink of being a financial bankrupt; bankers would not increase his loans and his relatives and nearest friends were skeptical of giving him a lift. A neighbor, however saw that he was dejected and looked as if he were in terrible trouble. "Something is wrong over there," he told his wife. "I wonder what it can be."

The next morning he walked over to the dejected man.

"I've been thinking about you," he said, "Are you in trouble. Is there something I can do to help?"

"I'll advance the money you need," said his neighbor quietly.

When asked why he responded in this way, he said, "I had seen that man day in and day out with his family. I knew his habits of life; I knew him to be worth while. When I saw him in trouble, I wanted to help him if I could."

That was the lift that saved the man from financial ruin—the lift of a good neighbor—D. Carl Yoder.

1. How may one become a good teacher of juniors?

It is important that a teacher of juniors adapt his instruction to this age, remembering that in this age are found marvellous activity, an endless supply of energy, an irresistible love of fun and noise, the desire to know and a dawning independence. If there is a failure of interest, first seek the cause in yourself; only as far as he feels sympathy in his teacher, can he be influenced.

The junior feels that he is no longer a child and therefore strongly resents anything suggesting of being patronized, such as certain forced intimacies of manner and those youthful expressions which many well meaning teachers mistaking for winsomeness and sympathy with childhood. A straightforward, natural frank manner that implies equality and friendly interest, is more calculated to win the young person's confidence, just as a religion that emphasizes manliness and womanliness is bound to appeal to him.

In the same way things which are hard to do and call forth great effort, are very much more of a challenge to him than those which lie within his power of achievement. His outlook is all toward the future and the man he will soon be and we must think of him in this way more than as a mere child.

A good leader of juniors must be a strict disciplinarian, as a child of this age has little respect for anyone of whom he can take advantage. As much freedom as possible should be given—directing activities rather than repressing them. A teacher may be clever, resourceful and popular with the class and yet not have nearly the influence he might if he met them during the week and joined them in some favorite sport. A good teacher of juniors realizes that this is the greatest opportunity for fellowship and real friendship between him and his class and also that the rapidly developing social instincts of the boy demand this sort of companionship.

TESTED METHODS OF TEACHERS OF JUNIORS.

Joseph P. Grace and Joseph J. Larkin both of New York, both distinguished Catholic Americans, were recently named by His Holiness Pope Pius to be Knights and members of the American Chapter of Malta.

The Bible is still the world's best seller. More than 30,000,000 copies are circulated every year and it has been translated into more than 800 languages and dialects. It was recently reported that 955,671 copies of the Bible were distributed in the city and harbor of New York during 1928.

The largest gift ever made to Methodist education has been received by the College of Liberal Arts, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. This gift was received from Milton H. Wilson, a trustee of the university, who died last month, leaving eight million dollars to the institution.

The twenty-ninth annual Congress of the Disciples of the United States will be held this year at St. Louis April 16-19.

A national interdenominational home missions congress is to be held in Washington, D. C., in December, 1930. The Home Missions Council with the co-operation of the federal council of churches and the council of women for home missions are sponsoring this conference. The purpose of this conference is to make a critical and constructive study of the home missionary need, the responsibilities and methods of approach under modern conditions and to work out more statesmanlike policies and plans of organization for the winning of America to Christ.

CHAPTER LXI
The next day was another warm spring one. While Betty took dictation from Andy he quite solidly gave her one letter addressed to Miss Betty Brown.
Present. It said: "Mr. Andy Adair would like the pleasure of your company to dance this evening at six-thirty. R. S. V. P."

She took the notes in her book without a change of expression.
With her transcribed letters she put a reply on his desk. "Miss Brown is pleased to accept Mr.
Adair's kind invitation to dance and dine. Call at her residence and ask for Hogan."

They both laughed as he read the note. He said: "Fine and dandy. Miss Brown. I'll be on hand at six-thirty."

Betty put on her nicest dress, and after a half hour's spin they went back to the same roof garden to which they had been before.

"Let's eat the table d'hôte dinner," suggested Andy. "Then we can dance between courses and won't have to think about what we are going to eat."

"That's splendid!" agreed Betty.
"Tell the waiter to select the dinner he would eat if he were dining here and we'll take a chance. I could eat anything."

Andy instructed the waiter, and they danced before the first course came. They went round the floor, oblivious to everything, lost in the swing of the music and the rhythm of the dance. When they stopped to applaud the orchestra to an encore, Betty, looking past Andy's shoulder, saw a white-haired man with a top-knot sticking straight up in the air which reminded her of Andy's father. When the dance began, and they went toward that side of the room, she watched covertly, and saw it was really he.
Opposite him was a regal-looking elderly lady. As Betty glanced through her lashes, with lids half closed, she saw the lady was watching them. She tried to attract Andy's attention, and then decided she would say nothing.
Andy would discover them for himself, and she was curious to see how he would act under the circumstances.

Andy did not see them during the encore. They went back to their table and ate the cold con-somme. Betty talked nonsense to Andy, although in a turmoil inside.
Would Andy introduce her? Would he pretend not to notice his parents? Somehow, she felt that a lot depended on the incident.

The consommé finished, they danced around the room and passed the table where the elder Adairs sat. Andy said nothing.
Suddenly he whirled her back toward the table and, circling to the edge of the dance floor, said:
"There is someone over here I want you to meet." He led her to the table and said: "Miss Brown, I want you to meet." He led her to father."

"How do you do, Miss Brown," said the mother. "I believe you are the paragon secretary of whom Andy has told us so much."

"Darned good one, too!" put in the elder Adair. "Nice girl. She doesn't interrupt you. Isn't afraid of people."

"What do you know about it?"
laughed Andy.
"Huh! Think you are the only person in the business who ever had Miss Brown as secretary? She worked for me one day. Laughed at my hair, by gad!"

"Don't get stuck up because of that, dear," smiled Mrs. Adair.
"Everyone laughs at your hair. But we mustn't keep the young folks standing."

"Bring your food over here and eat with us!" commanded Mr.
Adair.

"I would be glad if you would," added Mrs. Adair, smiling up at Betty. "But I fear Andy wouldn't be as happy. He's entitled to you all by himself."

"Mother, you're a wonderful woman!" Andy patted her shoulder.
"Miss Brown, let Andy bring you up to dinner some night. I like young people around."

"Thank you, Mrs. Adair," replied
Betty, gratefully.

"Oh, Andy, aren't they wonderful!" cried Betty, with shining eyes, after they left.

"The best ever. But I didn't know you had taken dictation from Pops. Didn't he frighten you?"

"I was tickled to death with him. He's an old darling! And your mother is just too sweet for anything!"

"I knew they would have dinner here tonight. That's why I brought you. It's the cook's night out.
Mother likes to come here. I want you to meet them."

Betty squeezed his hand under the table. He did not release it until the waiter came with the next course.

Betty snuggled closer to Andy the next time they danced. She was so happy. He was not ashamed of her. That she had danced publicly would not stand in her way. As they were eating their dessert, the two old folks bade them good night, cautioning them not to dance too long. They went their way after Mrs. Adair repeated her invitation for dinner.

When they were gone Andy beckoned the waiter and settled his check, singing softly to Betty:

"Always do what people say you should,
You never will be happy, unless you're good."

They told us not to dance too long.
We better stop and go for a ride."
"I'm willing, although I love to dance with you, Andy."

"It's a good thing. You will have a lot of it to do, young lady!" he threatened.

In the car on the River road they sped until they came to a spot where the moon made a long silver path across the surface of the river. Brittle pieces of silver shattered and broke off its edges.
It looked as though one could walk down its length.

"Gee, I'm happy!" cried Andy.
"I'm always happy when I'm with you."

"And so am I with you, Andy," said Betty, simply.

"I'm glad you approved of my family, too."

"Was that worrying you? I thought you might worry for fear they wouldn't approve of me!"

"How could they help it?" he demanded, wonderingly. "You had already sold yourself to Pops.
When mother invites any one to dinner it is like indorsing their note in the bank!"

"Do they know that I danced for a living and that I was in the car with you when you smashed it up?"

"No, they don't," answered
Andy. "I wanted them to know you before I told them. I want them to be unprejudiced. You know, Betty, a show girl has to prove herself.
You have certainly done that."

"Do you really think so, Andy?"
"I don't think anything about it.
I know it. I know my old folks like a book and they are for you. I never knew Pops to do anything but grunt at a girl before!"

"It is no wonder you are so nice.

Even as the prophet is without honor in his own home town, so it is that few persons born in California have achieved more than mediocre success in motion pictures. The influx of talent from Iowa seems too strong for the natives, but this influx is augmented by the migration from other important art centers such as Olathe, Kans., and Corsicana, Tex.

WORLD WAR MOTION PICTURE COMING TO XENIA ON THURSDAY

"The World War," the first comprehensive historical motion picture of the great conflict to be sanctioned by the United States government, which will be shown at the Bijou Theater, Thursday, April 11, matinee and night, under the auspices of Joseph P. Foody Post, No. 95, American Legion, is a picture based entirely upon historical facts and scenes.

Camera men were constantly in danger of death when they were "shooting" the scenes for this picture. Many lost their lives to give the record of "The World War" to the screen.

G. F. Zimmer, connected with the Naval Intelligence Corps during the war and who was detailed to film the scenes shown in the picture, escaped death by a narrow margin many times. Once when he was in Russia, the Bolsheviks arrested him for taking pictures and sentenced him to be shot. He escaped by hiding under the straw in a box car until the train pulled out and carried him to safety.

The screen version of "The World War" is said to give the story of that stupendous conflict in a way that is readily comprehensible to the audience. By use of maps that grow dark and light and extend and contract with the warring out or taking of salients and the bending or breaking of battle lines, the progress of the greatest war in history is made most graphic. The use of maps in particular is one of the most interesting features of the film.

Tickets for the matinee or either of the two evening shows may be purchased from any member of the Legion.

Ex-Senator's Plucky

Mrs. Rebecca L. Felton.

Although the only woman ex-senator, Mrs. Rebecca Lattimer Felton, of Cartersville, Ga., 93, was severely injured in an auto accident recently, she was calm while physicians took 20 stitches in cuts on her face. In 1922 she was appointed to fill the unexpired term in the United States senate of Thomas E. Watson, who died, and held her senate seat for only 22 hours.

CHECK WORKER GETS PAROLE FOLLOWING SENTENCE BY COURT

After being sentenced to from one to three years in Ohio State Penitentiary on each of four indictments charging him with passing twelve worthless checks on as many different individuals and firms for sums totaling $176.70, Dallas E. Shipley, tenant on the Harry Ater farm, Springfield Pike, has been paroled by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy in the custody of W. F. Wagner, R. R. No. 14, Xenia.

The parole was granted on the condition Shipley pays the cost of prosecution, amounting to $59.75 and also makes complete restitution within ninety days to the persons he defrauded by issuing checks without sufficient funds in the bank.

Shipley was indicted four times at a special session of the last October grand jury and pleaded guilty.

The indictments charged Shipley with issuing worthless checks to the following persons and firms: J. F. Geger, $22.50; The Huston-Bickett Co., $10; McCoy Brothers, $20.35; Greene County Hardware Co., $22.50; Ledbetter Coal Co., $16.50; Bryant Motor Sales Co., $14.10; Ed Wood, $25; C. L. Babbs Hardware Co., $30; R. E. Bryson, well recommended. The choir will furnish music. Everyone is welcome to the services.

BEGINS PEN TERM

Sanford Miller, colored, this city, sentenced to serve from two to seven years in Ohio State Penitentiary following his conviction for auto theft, was removed to the penitentiary to begin serving his term Thursday by Sheriff Ohmer Tate.
